NEW BEDFORD WINS BUNTING CRICKET CLUB

EXCITING GAME

"Bob" Hart's Lowell Polo club made a gallant attempt to halt the onrushing New Bedford whalers at the Crescent rink last night, but failed by the margin of 2 to 1.

The game was one of the fastest and most bitterly contested of the season, and New Bedford's victory was due to superior play. The Whalers have a high class club. With Bill Duggan the leading goal getter of the league and Wiley doing the pushing and pulling, Gardner and Duffness presenting a stone wall defense, the club is well balanced, and the team that score a win over such a combination has to play polo every minute.

Hart and Davies worked like trojans on the rush line for Lowell, while Duffness played a strong defensive game. Which did a good job in front of the cage, but Houghton, who played hard and worked as never before, found difficulty in keeping pace with the speedy Duggan and Wiley.

Duggan's exhibition though mainly responsible for the Lowell reverse was so brilliant that it demanded recognition from the crowd. He was here there and everywhere and twice he took the ball the entire length of the hall for bullfights. Hart excelled for Lowell but the visiting obstructionists played him hard all night.

Lowell was first to score and the large crowd voiced its approval. But Duggan and Wiley then came to the front and by leading three into the nets, got the lead and held it throughout.

The second session brought a goal by Hart, but Duggan came to the front with another before the period ended. In the final stanza Wiley and Duggan counted while Lowell's best effort produced one by Hart. The score:

POLO NOTES

The owners of the New Bedford polo team were at the game and greatly enjoyed the outcome.

Bill Duggan is certainly a wonder. He is an artist in all departments of the game and is mainly responsible for the great lead his club has in the pennant race.

Gardner and Duffness are a classy pair of defensive players. They covered Hart and Davies very effectively last night.

A committee of Lawrence men came to the game last night for the purpose of conferring with President Moore relative to securing a franchise. The visitors said the men greatly miss the game and are very anxious to return to the league.

13 INDICTED IN BASEBALL SCANDAL

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—Indictments against 13 persons believed to have been implicated in the throwing of games in the 1919 world's series by Chicago American league players, were returned yesterday by a special Cook county grand jury which has been investigating the baseball scandal for more than a month. The indictments charged conspiracy to commit an illegal act. Further indictments are expected when the jury reconvenes next week, the state's attorney's office said.

Indictments were returned against ten of the men named yesterday previously had been indicted but were returned to overcome legal technicalities. The other three, Abe Attell, Hal Chase and William Hurns, had only been unofficially mentioned in connection with the investigation.

GEORGE R. DANA
Has Information Regarding Prices of Automobiles and Other Things—War Prices Will Come No More
To the falseness of a contention that the industry must be stagnant until prices shall have been adjusted to a lower level, no less an authority than a prominent Chicago bank bears witness. This bank, the Continental and Commercial, in a statement given out this week points out that there is no reasonable excuse for expecting prices ever to reach their pre-war levels. It is admitted that there may be reversals, but that these or any others can ever get back to their 1913 levels is strongly doubted. "The consumer," says this bank, "must begin to think in terms of a new and higher price level. Reasons why prices will remain high, as compared with 1913, are many and potent. They may be found in other factors than supply and demand, labor costs and transportation. There has not been sufficient decline in money and bank credit or sufficient increase in domestic trade to justify anticipation of speedy and marked increase in purchasing power of the dollar."

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Barton

THE PICKNICKERS ARRIVE

Pretty soon all the Meadow Grove people began to arrive. The sun hadn't been up very long and the grass was wet with dew. Sam Snake's boy was as wet as any old garden-hose when he got there, and when he said he couldn't get a raincoat to fit him, Mr. Coon remarked that he had a perfectly good umbrella cover he'd send him for nothing. Phil Frog was as happy as a pig in clover for he loved to be wet, you know, and isn't it strange when he is such a dandy! Orrie Owl and the Blackbirds, and Bud Blue-bottle were lucky, for they could fly, but poor Tommy Thousand-legger didn't get there until away late, for he couldn't find all of his overalls. And wasn't that a joke, though, for he came the whole way under ground and didn't get a bit damp. Mrs. Woodchuck was awfully ashamed of her family when they got there, for every one of them were as limp as a dish-rag, and she'd stayed up all night washing and starching and ironing, too.

But bless you, nobody cared, and everybody was happy and they all talked at once, and Mr. Scribble Scratch got so hoarse trying to make himself heard, that he had to take a cough-drop.

Nancy and Nick had arranged a lot of games but there wasn't a bit of use trying to start them yet, because the boys were all shivering up and down trees, just ruining their trousers, and the girls were jabbering awfully about how to make fudge and such things.

Suddenly Mr. Bunny pointed his cane at a large ball hanging from a limb on the willow. "What's that?"

he asked.

Then Nick had time to explain.

Moretown, Vermont, March 27th 1918.

"I am warranted in having the strongest faith in 'Fruit-a-lives' after receiving such wonderful benefits from them. For years, I was a sufferer with Kidney and Liver Complaints. My back ached; my liver was sluggish; and my whole system seemed out of order.

'Fruit-a-lives' was the only remedy to help me. They strengthened the kidneys, made my bowels move regularly and freed me of all the distress caused from the kidney trouble, constipation and indigestion. A few weeks' treatment with 'Fruit-a-lives' made me feel as if I had a new lease on life, and I am glad to make known the great value of these Fruit Liver Tablets."

NEWSPAPER STRONGEST ADVERTISING MEDIUM

BOSTON, Oct. 23.—The potency of the newspaper as a national advertising medium is stronger than any other, William A. Thomson of New York, director of the Advertising Bureau of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, declared at the closing session yesterday afternoon of the first annual New England advertising conference at the Copple-Plaza.

"We believe in the newspaper as the national advertising medium," said Mr. Thomson, "because we look upon this country as a collection of markets and not as a single entity that can be treated with one prescription applied in a general fashion. The more attention an advertiser gives to market analysis the more newspaper advertising he will employ."

Advantages of newspaper publicity were considered by Mr. Thomson from three points of view—that of the manufacturer, the retailer and the consumer. The manufacturer gains the benefit of timeliness in the daily newspaper which other means do not provide, he said, to meet emergencies that arise over night. In addition, despite the upward graduation of advertising prices, newspaper advertising is "still the least expensive of advertising mediums. Prices heretofore have been too cheap. I think we are coming to

"The dealer looks favorably upon newspaper advertising because he reads the newspaper and is willing to push a new product if it is advertised in his home city. To the consumer the advantage of newspaper advertising is still more obvious." The 2100 dailies in America have a following of 28,000,000 people, he said, and the 500 Sunday newspapers an additional following of 16,000,000. "The newspaper thus becomes the universal medium, reaching everybody, everywhere, every day."

He said that during the past year $500,000,000 local advertising had been used in the nation's press and that national manufacturers had increased their newspaper budget from $40,000,000 in 1910 to $150,000,000 in 1919.

ANNUAL SOCIAL BY HOLY ROSARY SODALITY

The annual social of the Sacred Heart Holy Rosary sodality, was held in the school hall on Moore street last evening, and like its predecessors proved a success in every particular.

There was a large attendance, friends coming from many other parishes and all thoroughly enjoyed the evening's program. The concert was well arranged and each and every number was given in a highly artistic manner. Encores were demanded in every instance and all performers graciously responded.

Mrs. Mabel Sullivan was the announcer and she opened the evening's program by inviting all to join in singing the hymn, "Mother Dear Oh Pray for Me." The following numbers were then given:

Kelley's Dream, Lillian Mooney, of Malden Gypsy dance, Helen Connors, Ding Toes, Marion and Ruth Sunbeam dance, Mary Chambers Reading, Catherine Kenney Solo Eileen, Baby Margaret Mooney Solo Eileen, Margaret Dean Dixie dance, Margaret Higgins Piano solo, Ethel Sheehan Orchestra selection, Lillian Mooney McFadden, Margaret O'Reilly, Blanche Kelly and Helen Lannon. ## MAYFLOWER DESCENDANTS

Newly "Proved Ancestor" In Capt. Richard More, Who Came Over as a Boy of Ten

BOSTON, Oct. 23.—The first instance in more than 25 years in which research has enabled genealogists to transfer the name of a passenger on the Pilgrim ship Mayflower from the list of those from whom descent cannot be proved to the roll of those from whom descent can be proved, was announced today by George Ernest Bowman, secretary of the Massachusetts society of Mayflower descendants.

The newly "proved ancestor" is Captain Richard More, who came over in the Mayflower as a boy of 10, under the care of Elder William Brewster.

Captain More later went from Plymouth to Salem and died in that city at the age of 84 years. He was buried in the Charter Street cemetery in Salem, and his gravestone is the only known memorial to a Mayflower passenger erected at the time of his death. He was married first to Christian Hunt and after her death to Jane Hollingsworth.

The "proved" Mayflower ancestors now number 30, leaving 34 from whom descent cannot be proved.

Two republican rallies will be held at the C.M.A.C. hall in Pawtucket street Sunday, October 31. The first will be held at 1:30 o'clock for the women voters and will be presided over by Mrs. F. N. Dostaler. The second will be at 3:30 o'clock and will be for the men. It will be presided over by Xavier A. Heleste, private secretary to Congressman Rogers. The speakers at both rallies will be Lieut. Gov. Channing Cook, candidate for governor, Congressman John Jacob Rogers, Mayor Perry D. Thompson, Miss Frances Nevins of Boston and Representatives Henry Achin, Victor F. Jewett and Adelard Herard.

COURT GEN. DIXON
A regular meeting of Court Gen. Dixon, 217, F. of A. was held last evening with a large attendance. Four applications for membership were received and the membership committee announced two prizes, one of $15 and the other of $10 for the member initiated candidates, and a number in order to be eligible for the prizes the member must bring in at least ten new names. Routine business was transacted.

HALLOWEEN PARTY
A group of young people of North Billerica conducted an enjoyable social party in Smith's hall, Jones' corner, last evening, the affair being in the form of a Halloween party. Games were played, dancing was enjoyed and refreshments were served. The affair was conducted by the following committee: Misses Madeline Sullivan, Alice Cassidy, Mary McCarthy, Jennie Cassidy and Marion Sheridan.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE
"The Furnace," Powerful Drama of Modern Marriage, the Feature
 Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday
 The usual excellent Sunday program will be carried out at the Merrimack Square theatre tomorrow afternoon and evening. Two big features and various short-reel photoplays will make up the series of attractions arranged by Manager Nelson.
 For Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday the feature will be "The Furnace," a powerful drama of modern marriage.

 This play is an English one, concerning a London society man and his giddy young wife, who had been a musical comedy favorite before her marriage and retained her musical comedy disposition and tastes after that interesting ceremony.
 Director Taylor is an Englishman,
 and one who knows well the conventions of English social life. He selected this sensational novel of British life, from the pen of one of Britain's most popular writers, and then,

 in Hollywood, California, set about the task of producing a faithful picture of English life. On the English types were chosen for the cast, and English settings, representing famous London
 churches, streets, and places of amusement, erected at enormous cost of both money and taste. English fashions were used in costuming the English-looking members of the cast.
 English atmosphere was obtained by paying attention to every detail, from English tea-service to English modes of motor cars. This last item, by the way, was no small one, yet Director Taylor insisted that such details were entirely too important to be overlooked. Little English mannerisms were worked into the bearing and gestures of the actors, English customs are faithfully portrayed.
 Julia Crawford Ivers wrote the adaptation and the picture is interpreted by an all-star cast including Agnes Ayres, Jerome Patrick, Theodore Roberts, Helen Dunbar, Betty Francisco,
 Milton Sills, Fred Turner, Mayme Kel-
 so, Lucien Littlefield, Robert Bolder
 and others of note.
 In addition to "The Furnace," there will be another big feature attraction for the first half of the week.
 The International News, a comedy and Topics of the Day will round out the bill.
 The feature attraction for the latter
 half of the week will be Charles Ray, always a popular Lowell favorite, in
 "An Old Fashioned Boy."
 Mr. Ray is seen as a bashful young man who proposes to a somewhat snobbish girl and when she accepts him, takes her to see a bungalow which he has purchased for their home. The girl rather resents her sweetheart's precipitancy in the matter and an estrangement ensues. But the old-fashioned boy, after a series of comical mishaps, finally adjusts matters and he and his fiancée as well
 as all concerned find happiness.
 Playing opposite the star, Ethel
 Shannon, a film debutante created a pleasing impression. The support generally was of the best, the work of
 Alfred Allen, Wade Boteler, Grace
 Morse, Gloria Joy and the juveniles,
 Frankie Lee, Virginia Brown and Hal
 Cooley being clever.
 The usual excellent surrounding program will also be carried out on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

 othy Wahl, Almont & Dumont, Earl & Bartlett, Dike Thomas and Tommy Gordon.

Next week Farrell Taylor, one of the funniest of blackface comedians, will appear with his versatile company in "The African Duke." This is a musical farce. Taylor takes care of the fun and he has with him two splendid women instrumentalists, Carleen Diamond, vaudeville's youngest harpist, and Edith Swan, a celebrated iron-tonist. This act is built along musical lines. There is action in every second of it.

A young lady with a manner quite magnetic is Clara Howard. As a singing comedienne she has individuality, and as a mimic she has brought to the stage probably the most accurate and decidedly, exuberantly funny imitation of Chaplin. And she is constantly a "live wire."

"Trying to Please" is a worthy understanding, and so Anderson and Yvel have given that as the name of their act. They are roller skaters, but they put comedy into their work which is a new line for skaters. Everywhere
 they have appeared their efforts at entertainment have been successful.
 Holliday and Willette are not unknown here. They have an uncontainably humorous sketch called "The Tailed." That they are detailed to make fun isn't to be doubted by anybody. Certain it is that no man and woman work any harder than do they,
 and their work is always full of results.

 intimate, it has to do with the doings

BRIGHT DEMOCRATIC OUTLOOK

Nothing in this campaign thus far has been so remarkable as the change of sentiment in favor of the democratic ticket.

This change apparently has resulted from the visible attitude of Senator Harding on the League of Nations. Many people who would be inclined to vote for Harding merely as a republican, have been driven into the Cox camp by the senator's lack of sincerity. He seems to be without fixed convictions on any issue and particularly on the League of Nations he still waffles and wobbles.

At first the mammoth campaign fund on the republican side seemed to convince the average voter that against such a vast slush fund the democrats had but slight chance of success. That feeling has been reversed and now the tide seems strongly towards Cox and Roosevelt with bright prospects of democratic victory.

Governor Cox showed up ex-Senator Root's insincerity, and he has even more forcibly dealt with other prominent critics of the league such as ex-President Taft and Senator Lodge. To those who would criticize his attitude on the League of Nations, we would say that he is not and will not be bound to the Wilson instrument. He will favor the league with reservations such as will safeguard our American sovereignty, the Monroe Doctrine and the rights of small nations. The United States senate will never ratify the treaty without these essential safeguards. On this point, here is what Governor Cox says he will do if elected:

"I have stated further that I will accept reservations from any source which are offered in sincerity and with a desire to be helpful. I have also stated if I am elected president, my election can be construed only as a mandate of the American people; and that to secure ratification of the treaty and the league I would sit down with the members of the United States senate; I would confer with Mr. Wilson, and with you, Mr. Root, as well as with Judge Taft and all others who have a sincere purpose and whose service in the past equips them especially as advisors in this work."

That statement seems to be strictly fair and genuinely American. The attitude of the two candidates relative to the league and the Irish question, which enters into it to some extent, has been well stated by Daniel H. Coakley of Boston as follows:

"With Mr. Cox in the presidency when the league is complete, Ireland's cause will have his support. He has said so."

"With Mr. Harding at the helm of our ship of state, Ireland will struggle and shrink in vain. He has said so."

"Between these two men, every American son of an Irish mother will stand by Cox, who says 'I will stand against the man who says I won't.'"

Should Harding be elected, it is generally understood that the Paris treaty will be ratified by the senate with the Lodge reservations or others quite similar. The senate will never ratify the treaty with reservations less important even at the behest of Governor Cox. Hence as far as the League of Nations is concerned, there is no reason why Harding should be preferred to Cox but many reasons to the contrary.

THE STATE CAMPAIGN

The republican leaders of Massachusetts are scarcely to be blamed for concentrating their campaigning on the national ticket. They are desirous of hanging on to control of the government of the commonwealth. The most promising way of realizing their ambition is to direct, if possible, the attention of voters away from their state candidates and the record of Burroughs, dynastic rule and inefficiency on Devon hill, together with the fight between Fuller and Washburn in which the epithets "junior," "lame," "political bandit" and "hand of thieves" are exchanged.

Channing Cox is scarcely a figure that the better class of republicans like to contemplate as occupying the chair once filled by such men of honesty, integrity and ability as Andrew Greenleaf, Grant, Wolcott and Gould Cox, the time-serving politician, the manipulator of legislation at the behest of predatory corporations, the leader of committees to stifle the movement of progressive laws, a bitter pill for republicans to swallow, and it is not to be wondered that the operators of the party machine are trying their best to keep the name of Cox out of sight until the critical moment comes when they hope that Harding and Cox will be taken down with a single gale by squabbling voters to insure their continued control of office and patronage.

No one can deny the wisdom of the leaders in trying to keep from the voters' view as much as possible the workings of the G. O. P. side of the issue that is now being run in connection with the intense fight for the Massachusetts governorship. What a sight to three! Alvin T. Fuller, once the big machine of political party, a self-styled supporter of the League of Nations, a student of Washburn, who is quoted from the same platform with Senator Lodge, who has been denounced as a blood-drinking German monarchist in favor of the election of the widely wealthy Harding, and the representation in control of the state government of the party that he has himself deserted as well as his forty thousand. Not that it is Joseph Parnes and his friends, simulating their own attitude of indifference to their own people, every day by use on Fuller on election day. Then there is the apostle of progressivism, Charles Sumner Bird, with his aureole temporarily laid aside, joining with Washburn in hurling poisoned darts at the Mahlen automobile manufacturer and digging up facts from his record that party expediency requires should be allowed to remain in oblivion.

From such an unflattering sight the voters can turn with confidence this year to John Jackson Walsh, Marcus A. Coolidge and their associates on the democratic ticket, assured that if placed in control of the government there will be inaugurated a reign of honesty, efficiency and progress on Beacon hill.

GREENWOOD'S SLANDER

Of course militarism in Ireland is supported by the British parliament dominated as it is, by Sir Edward Carson. The Irish secretary who defends the reprisals of the Black and Tans, has declared that he will again comb Ireland over in search of arms, not excepting Ulster.

That is the first time Ulster has been marked for search of any kind; but nobody believes Greenwood's statement when he says he will deal with Ulster as with the rest of Ireland. Ulster is an armed camp, well supplied with arms secured from Germany in 1914 and supplemented from other sources since then. But while the rest of Ireland was being searched for arms and terrorized by the Black and Tans, there was no interference with the unionists of Ulster, although they banished the non-unionists and burned their homes in the city of Belfast and in Lisburn.

Even in the new undertaking, it is believed that if search for arms be made in Ulster, it will be directed only against those who are suspected of sympathy with the Sinn Fein. The Irish question will never be settled while England backs a belligerent minority against the majority. That is the cause of the present trouble and there can be no permanent settlement until the government policy, whatever it be, is applied equally to all Ireland.

When Secretary Greenwood said that America "is no longer welcoming Irish immigration because it does not desire to swell the vast total of disturbing elements in the republic," he voiced at the same time a falsehood and a slander. America has taken no action and expressed no opinion relative to Irish immigration; and no immigrants, however desirable, are welcomed formally or otherwise on landing here.

Ireland has been free from crime than any other country in the world and if the people are using physical force in an effort to secure justice, it is because peaceful methods tried for forty years were defeated at the behest of Mr. Carson. The Irish are not Bolsheviks.

Since the Sinn Fein started its active campaign, it has forbidden the young men of Ireland to leave the country. That policy probably bothers Secretary Greenwood.

THE LAST STRONGHOLD

The Massachusetts senate is the stronghold of conservatism. For years, under the control of the republican oligarchy it has been the graveyard of progressive legislation. Above its doors might have been inscribed "abandon hope all ye who enter here" with ideas of securing improved conditions in state government that are not acceptable to the ruling machine.

The dynasty controlled by Lodge, Weeks, et al., has held its place every year to control, if possible, both branches of the state government and the governorship. It has gone out to capture everything in sight. But, in the last analysis it has not felt that it was really defeated while it retained control of the state senate.

Houses of representatives might come and go, democratic governments might sit in the executive chamber, but so long as the upper house members could be depended upon to register the will of the big interests in control of the republican party in matters of legislation that intimately concerned them, there was little real worry in the G. O. P. camp.

Year after year the senate has registered the will when it has passed acts and resolves, not of the people at large, but of a chosen few.

The people of Lowell are deeply interested in having a clean, progressive and efficient state government. A vote for John T. Sparks, democratic candidate for senator, is one of the surest ways of doing something toward getting that kind of government.

A party of American tourists were visiting the ancient landmarks of England. Their guide was, of course, supplying them with more or less valuable historic information.

His warden no more in life talk. His voice of friendship is unspoken.

As in familiar ways we walk, Our musings by no word are broken.

Or if, perchance, I voice some phrase (More light and garrulous am I) He answers with a speaking gaze, Half-sister to a song or sigh.

Sweet is the silence of a friend Whose mood so merges with my own.

And would he be the journey's end Were I to pass this way alone.

Perhaps the shadows and the dust Some faint reply would frame for me.

Should I demand if time were just To merge all waters with the sea.

Thus pondering, a sigh I heave That thoughts my naked soul should leave.

Yet dreams of death he bids me leave, And glory in the living day.

Before he in the path he leaps, He reads by mood, and bids me leave.

Sweet summer's in the wooden deeps! And yet men say that he is dumb.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

"He looks like a fighter from Fingertville," said a world war veteran of Governor Cox as the candidate stood on the rear platform of his special train speaking to an audience at the Middlesex street station Tuesday evening. Certainly the presidential aspirant does give the impression that he might be slightly nervous on occasion. He has a broad, firm lower jaw, that he brings together when he closes his lips with something that is reminiscent of a bull dog's way of gripping things. The experienced physiognomist, however, would doubtless find many other qualities set forth in the candidate's face besides determination and aggressiveness. The nose and forehead are those of a dreamer and idealist, a man who can see beyond the immediate here and now and trace the broad trend of human development and progress. It is such a face as shows the wise balance of the powers of a man of comprehensive vision and constructive faculties backed by untiring perseverance and determination. If there had been more ladies in the audience they might have paid more attention to the dress of the governor.

There have been statements of light and leading which have visited Lowell before now, who have affected to dress with what might be termed careless indifference. Not so with "Timmy" Cox. He was not by any means a tailor's model, but his clothes showed, nevertheless, that he has the address of an accomplished member of the craft and that he possesses a sense of the value of a good suit. Perhaps the candidate realized that a good dress came into existence in politics in 1920, and that the feminine vote may be swayed just the least bit by the attire of a candidate for office. The weakest point about "Timmy" was his voice, and it was evident during his short speech that he was laboring under difficulties with much overworked throat muscles.

Bakers of Portland, Me., realizing that the price of sugar has dropped recently, have announced a 25 per cent. price cut. The price of doughnuts, cakes and other delicacies, however, has not been lowered. The Portland bakers note that there will not be an immediate reduction in the price of the goods, but they are determined to allow lowering the cost of manufacture. Under the new prices, which become effective in the Maine city Thursday, doughnuts will sell for 10 cents a dozen. Here in Lowell they are selling for two cents apiece or just twice that amount in a dozen. Have the price of doughnuts been lowered? It is not always the speakers who are most interested in their attire. After the speech of Senator Charles McCall, for a solid hour in the Lowell hall, the other evening, at the bidding of the crowd, I turned to look over the audience. I first noticed a lady in the front row. I saw her in the front row of men to whom I was looking. It was a woman in a dark dress, and she was looking at the speaker. Foresters Banqueted in J. Smith Says the old Sun:

Supreme Chief Ranger Lawrence J. Smith was a happy and a proud man last night, when over 400 of his fellow citizens grasped his hand at the banquet board and expressed their congratulations upon his recently acquired honors at the head of the Foresters of America.

It was a great gathering and a great tribute. There were men of all ranks in life, of all creeds and political persuasions. Foresters and non-Foresters all were together bound by a common purpose, to do honor to one of Lowell's favorite sons.

The tables were set in Associate hall whether the party repaired at 5 o'clock. Caterer Miller had accommodations for 225 and every seat was taken. The American orchestra disappeared sweet music during the speech. Those at the head table were Supreme Chief Forester Smith, Chairman Harrington; Chairman Paulkner of the police board; George Dansey; Supreme Chief Secretary McMurty; Mayor Courtney; John H. Harrington; Rev. Father Joyce; J. P. Fitzgerald, Worcester; H. A. Thomas, secretary to Governor Greenwood, and local officers of the order.

Mr. John H. Harrington, introduced as toastmaster, said: "We are celebrating the fact that 100,000 Foresters of America have chosen a distinguished Lowell citizen to be supreme chief. Truly the Foresters have good reason to rejoice in the choice of such a man and Lowell that one of her sons has been so honored."

A fine musical and literary program followed and among those who took part were W. B. Ready, J. J. Coughlan, D. J. Donahue, James E. Donnelly, E. P. Slattery and W. H. Regan.

At the close of a very touching and delicious speech, Chief Smith, standing under the folds of the American flag, said: "There is one standard for us all. Do what you can to bring honor and glory to it, but never do that which will dim its lustre. I care not, brothers, at what altar you worship, but live up to the precepts of your order and you will be all the better members of your order."

Our other residents at least will recall Lawrence J. Smith, the manager of the Lowell One Price Clothing store, new Macartney's, the great advocate of temperance and a member of the first finance commission appointed for Lowell. Mrs. John J. Slattery, wife of the clerk of the House board, is his daughter.

Mathew's Bazaar Cleared $3000

The old Sun in notice the close of the Mathew's bazaar held quarter century ago said:

"Saturday night witnessed the close of the most successful society bazaar ever held in this city."

"The Mathews may well feel proud of the results of their nine days' carnival. The financial returns were very large and after all expenses are defrayed, it is figured that $3500 will be added to the building fund."

"The season ticket awards were as follows:

"House lot, 5000 square feet of land, E. F. Hathaway, 22 Middle street; 160 in gold, Fred Hammond, Hippo club; lady's gold watch, Daniel Donahue, 53 Bolt street; parlor set, Patrick J. Kane, 115 Church street; gent's costume made suit, James McElroy, 46 Elm street; $25 gold, P. Mathews, Box 10, French marble clock, M. F. Bailey, Army street; ton of coal, Frank Farrell, Market street. The overcoat presented by O'Hearn & Dow was won by Joseph Hurley of Cedar street."

Rev. Fr. O'Connell

The following tribute refers to the popular young Lowell priest, who afterwards rose to the cardinalate, His Eminence William Cardinal O'Connell:

"Rev. Fr. O'Connell, a native of Lowell, delivered the sermon at the dedication of St. Catharine's church in the Bunker Hill district yesterday. He is Bunker Hill district, as the name of the presidency of the American college at Rome. His sermon was an eloquent effort and delighted a vast audience."

25 Years Wed

From the old Sun:

In Groton Wednesday, Oct. 17, at the bride's home, Mr. Charles E. Nichols of Lowell and Miss Marie Evelyn Burgess were married by Rev. Francis Pierce of Groton. The bride was daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Nichols of Groton. The groom was son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Woodward of Nashua and the best man.

Mr. Albion Washburn Newell of Lowell and Miss Clara Marshall of Lowell were married in Danvers Oct. 15, by Rev. R. A. Greene.

At a wedding evening, Oct. 15, Mr. Gustave Forstberg and Miss Eva H. M. Pitt were united in marriage by Rev. Felix Grant at the Swedish church on North street. Over 100 friends of the happy couple attended the ceremony.

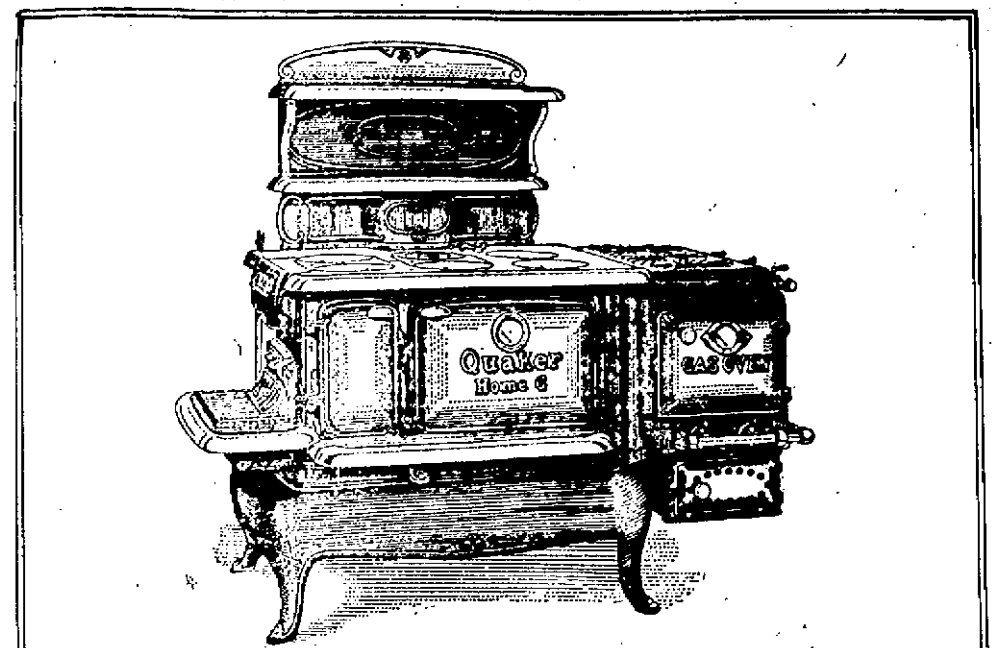

The wedding of Mr. Thomas F. Harty of Lowell and Miss Rose Harty of Lowell was celebrated last evening, Oct. 22, at the residence of the bride's mother, Mr. Albert Parsons, 15 Liberty street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. J. N. Greene, and the bride was attended by her sister, Miss Ella Harty, while Mr. James W. Parsons was best man. After a reception at which many costly gifts were noted, the happy couple departed on their wedding tour and on their return will reside in Roxbury.

FULLER REPLIES TO HIS CRITICS

BOSTON, Oct. 23.—(Congressman Alvin T. Fuller, whose victory in the Republican primary contest for lieutenant governor has been attacked by Charles Sumner Bird and Robert M. Washburn last night all back at both critics and defied his primary campaign against Joseph B. Warner.

He charged that the attacks on him by Bird and Washburn were made because these two men could find no other opportunity for limelight in these stirring times. He reviewed his criticism of Speaker Warner, and asserted that he won his nomination "in as fair and open a fight as was ever conducted in this state."

He calls upon Washburn and Bird to say whether or not they approve of the practice of law associations of members of the legislature lobbying around the state house, and appearing before legislative committees.

General Zeligowski's force is reported to number about 40,000 men, and if it can obtain supplies, is probably too formidable for the Lithuanian army to attack.

BODY OF MURDERED WOMAN FOUND

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Staten Island detectives sought today to identify the body of a young woman found dead of strangulation last night in a clump of underbrush near West New Brighton. Assistant Medical Examiner Wood declared that the woman, apparently about 25 years old, had been murdered. A small hemp rope was tied in a kangaroo's knot around the neck and the body showed evidences of a violent struggle.

Detectives believed the girl was strangled elsewhere and brought the thickest in an automobile and that the body had been in the thicket at least five days.

from the circle that up to this time has honored and accepted. Miss Margaret Fields will surely be found in a dramatic role that will afford her an opportunity to again demonstrate her rare attainments in this particular brand of entertainment. Little need be said in her favor, for it is too well known to the average patron of the theatre that she is a highly dramatic role, and this opportunity should give him an excellent chance to demonstrate his accomplishments along this line. Maxwell (Dillon), as the "Spider," will also find ample material on which to indicate his capabilities, while the remainder of the cast will be found in congenial roles.

In staging the piece, Director Bennett will devote his best efforts in giving it as near a reproduction of the original presentation as is possible, and assurance is given that it will be of exceptional merit. Mr. Bennett has given us many good presentations, but this one promises to surpass all former endeavors.

"The Spider" is sure to rank with the big hits of the season and tickets are already selling fast for all performances. Better secure your reservation at once and avoid possible disappointment. Box office open from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m. Have your name placed on the subscription list and play safe. It costs no more.

THE STRAND THEATRE

Third Anniversary Week to be observed with Big Triple Feature Program

The third anniversary of The Strand will be observed this coming week with a triple feature program of extraordinary merit. General Manager Soriero has gone to extra expense in securing for the patrons of Lowell and vicinity an offering that will excel both in quality and quantity any motion picture bill in New England, and his efforts no doubt will be shown through the presentation of the three features by the presence of capacity audiences at all performances. For the first three days of the week, starting with matinee Sunday, the feature events on the bill will be "Love, Honor and O'Beys," a special Metro production with an all-star cast. It is said to be one of the really great film creations of the year. The cast will include George Walsh, Ned Haggerty, Buster Keaton, one of the screen's funniest men in "One Week." Besides these features there will be the regular Weekly and musical numbers. For the last three days of the week, Pearl White in "The White Moll," and Lillian and Arthur in "The Great Conspiracy" will be the feature.

For the sacred concert on Sunday the management has arranged for five acts of big-time vaudeville and ten reels of the latest motion pictures.

"Love, Honor and O'Beys" is a screen adaptation by Eugene Walters of the play by the same name, which is based on the life of a New England girl who marries a wealthy church deacon to please her father, when she really loves a New York novelist, whose liberal views have created a scandal in her Puritanical community. She has broken with him completely, however, through the news that he has been named as the co-responsible in a sensational divorce. But he is a co-responsible in name only. When she learns of his innocence and that she has been deceived into marriage, she bolts the door of her bridal chamber against her husband. This situation lays a foundation for a dramatic conflict on the theme on whether a woman who has sworn to love, honor and obey her husband should bolt the door against him or whether she should seek happiness where she feels there is true love. The story has a satisfactory ending—one that will be better appreciated when told by the picture itself. The cast presenting the piece is made up of some of the real favorites of the screen.

A photoplay alive with action in "From Now On," the William Fox feature in which George Walsh is seen in one of his best characterizations. The picture tells the story of the duping of a young man who has just come into a fortune, and of his efforts to regain it out of the hands of a gang of swindlers.

Buster Keaton, well and favorably known as a comedy star, will be presented in his funniest, humorous making creations, entitled "One Week." It is said to be one of the funniest picture offerings produced this season.

For the last three days of the week, starting with matinee on Thursday, Pearl White, "The Marvel of the Screen," will appear in the White Moll story, a thrilling blend of the weird, the beautiful and the adventurous. It has an intensity of dramatic force and a rapidity of action calculated to appeal irresistibly to every sort of audience. The thrilling experiences of the heroine are many, and she accomplishes her aims only after several escapes from what appears to be certain death. The plot centres around Rhoda, a reformed crook, who turns settlement worker. She becomes interested in a released convict who is being forced to work his old life in the prison. The plot is a member. Her experiences in saving him are truly remarkable. Richard C. Travers is the capable leading man.

Edna Lyons and Lee Moran are to be shown in "La La Lucille," an adaptation of the big musical success of the stage a few seasons back. The picture is a measure of good humor, and some clever characterizations. You will like the offering immensely.

The remainder of the program will have the usual comedy and a Weekly of merit.

RIALTO THEATRE

Management Succeeds in Corraling Two Star Productions For First Three Days of the Week

A double feature bill, introducing Norma Talmadge in "The Branded Woman" and Tom Moore in "The Secret Room," will be the attraction at the Rialto theatre for the three opening days of next week. Both productions were secured after long and hard negotiations, and the management was extremely able to produce them here for the Lowell public. In addition to the two features for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, the Rialto will present a comedy, "Junk," Episode 12 of the "Third Eye," and the latest program of the Fox news and the Fox weekly.

The basic substance of the story in "The Branded Woman" has to do with the devilish influence which the denizens of the underworld are trying to exert over those above their social station and a striking effect in the production is the artistic likening of the evil tendencies among common people to the Devil and Hades. Other notable scenes are the interior of a fashionable Parisian house, a market place and a slave block in the far east and the allegorical scene in which the heroine is introduced a dream in which she imagines herself dragged down by ropes into a hideous whirlpool of slime and filth only to be rescued by the man she loves. This effect was found in the filming of a huge pool, horrible and repulsive, filled with vile, horrible creatures like the "slimy" things that crawl with wings in the time of the Ancient Mariner. The whole story deals with the influence of the underworld used by a woman against a judge because the judge is a scoundrel and the woman is a scoundrel. An only daughter of the judge is seduced by the scoundrel, the judge is seduced by the scoundrel, the judge is seduced by the scoundrel. The role of daughter is taken by Norma Talmadge, screen favorite. The picture is a fine National production adapted by Oliver D. Bailey's dramatic adaptation, "Branded" and is designed by Hugo Ballin.

Could Not Walk Up Stairs Without Stopping to Rest

This East Boston Woman Is Now Strong and Well—How She Overcame Anemia

"I was as bloodless as I could be and live," says Mrs. William H. Burk, of 216 Princeton street, East Boston, Mass., referring to an anemic condition from which she has entirely recovered. "When I was a girl," she continued, "I lived on a farm and I was so weak that I could not walk to a neighbor's without sitting down three or four times to rest. I did not have a particle of color."

"If I exerted myself in any way I had to give up. I could not go upstairs without resting. My heart palpitated so that it scared me. I suffered a lot from shortness of breath, had terrible headaches and was dizzy and nervous. I had no appetite."

"When I was 18 or 19 years old my mother read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and sent to the village for them. After I had taken the first box I felt better. I was stronger and had an appetite. After the third box my mother noticed the color coming back to my cheeks and lips. I grew stronger each day and was entirely well after a few more boxes. I am now strong and healthy and an enthusiastic in recommending Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

To build up the blood there is one remedy that has been a household word for a generation. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. They tone up the entire system, make the blood rich and red, strengthen the nerves, increase the appetite, put color in the cheeks and lips and drive away that unnatural tired feeling. Plenty of sunlight, good wholesome food and fresh air will do the rest.

The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., of Schenectady, N. Y., publishes a little book, "Building Up the Blood" which will be sent absolutely free on request. Your druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills or they will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 60 cents per box—Adv.

his big screen successes which will be pleasing to everybody.

For Thursday, Friday and Saturday the Rialto will show Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in "The Green Flame," Edith Sterling in "The One-Way Trail," the last episode of the "Hawk's Trail" with King Baggott and Johnny Hines in a roaring comedy, "Torchy in High." Kerrigan's production is an excellent detective-mystery picture with thrills galore, a winning climax and an attractive romance. Edith Sterling is known as the female William S. Hart and "The One-Way Trail" shows her in a set of daring riding and shooting stunts that surpass any western actress of the stage.

Next Sunday the Rialto has for its stellar attraction Mary Pickford in "Daddy Long Legs" and Bart Lytton in "The Spender." Too much is known of these stars already to warrant any further introduction and it is safe to bet that they will be given by a "full house." In addition there will be several vaudeville acts of a high class nature.

Little hope for the recovery of King Alexander is entertained by Dr. Geo. Vidal, a noted French specialist who has returned to this city from Athens. Professional etiquette prevents Dr. Vidal entering into details of the case, but it is understood he treated the king with injections of serum prepared from the wound itself.

The people of Athens are following the progress of King Alexander's illness with the deepest interest, says the Athens correspondent of the Journal. The morganatic wife of the king, known as Mademoiselle Manos, who was a trained nurse, remains by the king's bedside night and day, fighting for his life with all the skill and experience she gained during the war.

At the close of the ceremony the couple left on an extended automobile honeymoon trip and upon their return they will make their home in this city.

Knight-Dixon

Mr. Albert James Knights of Littleton and Miss Ethel Madeline Dixon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Dixon, of 107 Livingston avenue, were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents at 6 o'clock last evening. Rev. Edward C. Bonney, pastor of the Church Universalist church, performed the ceremony. Miss Edna Grayson Dixon, a sister of the bride, was the maid of honor and Mr. Perry G. Thompson was the best man. The bride wore pearl white satin with an overdress of Chantilly lace. Her dress was cut on train and her veil caught up with orange blossoms. She carried a large bouquet of white and pink roses. The maid of honor wore a white dress with an overdress of silver tulle caught up with rose buds and carried a silver basket filled with American Beauty roses and draped with tulle. The home was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Following the ceremony a reception was held and later Mr. and Mrs. Knights left on an extended motor trip. They will make their home in Boston.

What Is Meant by New Gland Theory

Facts Concerning New Theory of Restoring Health and Strength to Run-Down Men and Women.

The newspapers have reported frequent cases of surgical operations where animal glands have been transferred to human beings.

It is now further reported that gland substances taken from healthy young sheep and cattle, prepared in tablet form, are being administered in medicine, anatomic conditions requiring building up and where there is evidence of glandular deficiency.

It is claimed in support of this theory that our tiny glands govern the activity and health of the billions of life cells in our bodies. When we are weak, run-down, thin, anemic, listless and it is claimed that our glands are lacking in strength and cannot supply the proper amount of needed help, so what could be more natural than to supply this lack with gland extracts of healthy animals?

The Glandex Company, Inc., 244 West 4th St., N. Y., supply in the form of tablets under the name of Glandex Compound, a combination of gland substances with iron and other tonic agents which also help nature restore health and strength.

During the past few months this product has come into quite general use in those sections of the country where its merits as a general tonic have been given publicity. In fact, druggists report that they have never seen a tonic adopted by so many run-down men and women.

So confident are the manufacturers of the merit of Glandex Compound that the druggists are authorized to refund the full purchase price should anyone fail to feel satisfactory benefit after two weeks.

Note: $1000 will be paid by the Glandex Company, Inc., to anyone proving that Glandex Compound does not supply the proper amount of needed help, so what could be more natural than to supply this lack with gland extracts from sheep and cattle.—Adv.

Later in the week a rally under the direction of men of the party will probably be held in Associate hall. At this rally, it is expected, John Jackson Walsh, Marcus A. Coolidge, and other candidates on the state ticket will be present. The date for the holding of the rally depends upon the decision of the state committee as to the time when it will be possible to have the best array of speakers available.

Two Sunday Battles

The local republicans are to hold two rallies tomorrow afternoon, one for women and the other for men. The purpose will be primarily to advance the interests of the candidates for the legislature, and most of the men whose names are to be on the ballots will take part in the program.

Tomorrow's meetings will probably close the important campaign activities of the local G.O.P. The big rally of their party came on Thursday night in Odd Fellows hall, and was mainly notable for the lack of enthusiasm and the limited size of the audience. The rally had been advertised for days in advance, but not over 500 people had sufficient interest to make the journey to the hall. This was in some sharp contrast with the reception given to a candidate who when he visited the city Tuesday evening.

Only a few hours' notice was given of his expected arrival, the hour was one when most people are busy with their evening meals in their homes, and yet upwards of 3000 people assembled at the Middlesex street station to greet the democratic candidate. Some of these people had stopped on their way home from work and waited for an hour or more with their appetites calling for supper for the special train to roll in. There was a heartiness and enthusiasm about the cheers that greeted the governor that was in sharp contrast with the somewhat meagre applause that was in evidence at the republican gathering in Odd Fellows hall.

The Squabble Goes On

The squabble of the rival republican candidates, Fuller and Washburn, would have been candidate Warner in the background, furnishes the interest of a three-ring circus under the big top in the state campaign. Charles Sumner Bird, to whom not so many years ago the very name "republican" was anathema, is thrown into the program for full measure of entertainment.

The candidates and their friends have now reached the point where they are throwing about promiscuously at each other such epithets as "thief," "liar," and "murderer."

Fuller, egged on by the Washburn-Bird combination, continues to reiterate his charges of shady dealing in office of Speaker Joseph F. Warner. Apparently oblivious to the fact that his accusations are an indictment against the whole republican party that has elected and apparently is satisfied to see in each other who, according to Mr. Fuller, is ready of offenses that might properly be made the cause for his prompt removal.

In a long statement issued today Mr. Fuller again takes up the cudgels against Mr. Warner. He repeats that Hathaway and Warner are law associates; that Warner as speaker of the house appointed the committee on education of the legislature, and that the fall River mill owners passed over all the other attorneys of the commonwealth to employ Mr. Hathaway to oppose before the committee legislation that was admittedly in the interest of Massachusetts people and their children.

Continuing, Mr. Fuller says: "These facts should condemn Warner in the judgment of the republicans of Massachusetts, and I think God that the public conscience was sufficiently alive to condemn such practices, though the reformers, Bird and Washburn, can come out of the legislature and actually support such wrong doing."

Promotes the Coolidge Cause

Nothing but good for the cause of Marcus A. Coolidge, democratic candidate for the lieutenant governorship, can come out of the Fuller-Washburn-Warner melee. It is probable that a large share of the voters of the commonwealth have tired of the republican policy of selecting a lieutenant governor crown prince years in advance to ascend to the throne of the governorship, and that they were ready to take a shyness at the practice that will put it out of commission even if the internecine warfare in the republican camp had not broken out. It would seem probable, therefore, that whatever else may be the outcome of the election, Mr. Coolidge will go over the top on election day.

Not much prominence is commonly given in a presidential year to county political matters. Certain conditions that exist in Middlesex county are being talked about this year, and republican state leaders have had their troubles added to by having to try to get from under the responsibility that it is asserted, attaches to the acts of certain G. O. P. office holders. Here is the way in which the republican Boston Herald in an editorial has recently spilled the beans regarding one of the troublesome features of the local situation:

"It is a great mistake to suppose that Fred Burrell and his friends are the only people who play favorites in the bestowal of public moneys. Other cases in the state deserve investigation."

It intentions in particular Treasurer J. O. Hayden of Middlesex county as in the latter case because of transactions similar to those for which State Treasurer Burrell was relieved from office.

Palmer and Sparks Active

In the local field Jackson Palmer, democratic candidate for congress from the fifth district, is continuing his vigorous speaking campaign all over the district. Every day brings forth several speeches and rallies, and a program will be kept up without intermission until election eve. The friends of John T. Sparks, candidate for the seat in the senate now held by Frank H. Pittman, are to hold a meeting in Elks' hall in Middle street tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at which added vim will be injected into a vigorous campaign that is now going on. A lot of strong personal work is being put in by Mr. Sparks' supporters, and a strong sentiment in his behalf is being built up in the district.

Candidate For Auditor

Mrs. Alice Grant, democratic candidate for state auditor, is to speak this evening in Lowell. She will speak from the steps of the city hall at 7:30 p. m.

What Is Beauty? Very Difficult Question— And Here Are Six Different Answers

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Why is it that no group of men ever assembled in the world can agree as to whether or not a woman is a beauty?

"Because," says Adolph Klaubner, famous theatrical producer, "no two women can agree as to what beauty is. Each one has a distinct opinion as to what goes to make up beauty and she consequently does her best to enhance that quality in herself, thus appealing to that man or men who hold a similar view."

Not being satisfied that Klaubner was entirely right, I accepted his invitation to ask five women of his play, "Scrambled Eggs"—all of whom have won beauty contests—what their ideas of beauty were. And to make the investigation complete I finished by asking little Edith May, Wisconsin beauty, who is now enjoying the fame resulting from being selected as the most beautiful salesgirl in America.

"Charm, Of Course," said Juliette

Day, petite and dark. Miss Day hails from Boston and won half a dozen beauty contests there. "A woman could have the most beautiful face and figure in the world and yet not be beautiful. She must have charm to bring out that beauty."

The answer of Betty Barnicoat, a buoyant out-of-doors type, was somewhat similar and yet different enough to matter. "Personality," said she. "But it doesn't even have to be pleasant personality. Added to a pretty face you must have the feeling that a woman is different before you think her a beauty."

"Perfect Profile" "A perfect profile," said Elise Bartlett, titian-haired vision of loveliness. You might have expected that because she was chosen by James Montgomery Flagg as having a perfect profile and the most beautiful woman he could find for his picture of famous beauties drawn for the war campaign fund drive.

"Grace," says Margaret Hutchins, daughter of a well-known banker who was an overnight success in the play. "No woman can be considered beautiful unless she has grace that sets it off and accentuates it." Miss Hutchins is tall and dark and graceful.

"Animation coupled with well assembled features," says Marie Chambers, vivid blond. Miss Chambers has both, according to judges of a stage women's beauty contest held recently.

Just "Femininity" And now— "Simply femininity," says Edith May, the little prize beauty now in Ziegfeld's Follies and the Mayflower Photo Corporation. "Any pretty woman can be beautiful if she has that. I think men love femininity in women better than any other single thing."

So there you are, Mr. Klaubner apparently knew what he was talking about. What's your idea of the chief characteristic of beauty?

ORIENTAL INFLUENCE

The Harem Effect Adds Charming Novelty to This Chic Gown

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—The oriental influence is still popular with designers as witness this frock. It is of silk green crepe while the sleeves and the vest are of indestructible voile a little lighter in shade. The embroidery is a square design worked out in gold thread. The harem skirt is draped effectively in back.

American Women Give Much Thought

To the Gentle Art of Hair Dressing

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Never have women, at least American women, given so much time and thought and, of course, money to the gentle art of hair-dressing. Everyone is interested in new hair-dressing styles.

In the center, an English girl, Muriel Martyn Harvey, in "Happy-Go-Lucky," draws her hair quite frizzily down to the back of her neck, where she catches it with a silver slide. Then she divides the ends into two strands and curls them over a finger.

Pin Curls Over Ear

It is new, a trifle odd and very good looking, this way Patti Harrold has of doing her hair. She is "Irene" in "Irene" at the Vanderbilt theatre.

FOR OLDER SISTER THE TIGHT CURLS, FOR THE SUB-DEB THE CURLS CARELESSLY CAUGHT TOGETHER.

"You comb the hair perfectly smooth and brush it till it shines," says Miss

Harrold. "Then you make a straight parting down the right side, smooth it down to the ear, where you screw the ends into tight curls, and pin them in a bunch right over the ear. Do the same to the rest of the hair, pinning the curls over the other ear."

For the School Miss

At the right Allyn King of "Ladies Night" at the Ellinger theatre wears her hair in a simple, girlish way.

The hair is parted a trifle at one side and then drawn down in a careless wavy effect to be caught loosely together with a barrette at the ends. Only the ends are tightly curled. Almost any girl could train her hair to curl sufficiently for this style, however provokingly straight it is naturally.

SOCIETY GIRL WEDS MOUNTED POLICEMAN

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Announcement of the marriage of Miss Louise G. Beaver Webb, one of New York society's enthusiastic horsewomen, to Mounted Policeman T. J. Leonard, of the Central park squad, has created a mild sensation in society circles. The wedding followed a romance of the Central park bridge paths. Leonard is one of the handsomest men in the New York mounted force. The bride is the daughter of John Beaver Webb, a personal friend of the late J. P. Morgan. Photo shows Mrs. Leonard.

BROWN AND BLUE IN VOILE BLOUSE

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—The vogue of figured fabrics has brought out some very worthy blouse innovations of which one excellent example is illustrated. Its material is indestructible voile, a pattern which is not a pronounced figure, but vague browns and soft blues on a background of wood shades and, therefore, it can be worn with a skirt of almost any material or color.

The back, as shown, comprises a plaited panel, bloused a bit over a ribbon belt which threads it and then passes over the front which also, is plaited, but falls below which also. A row of brown silk-covered buttons matching the color of the belt, outlines the neck and forms a heading for the sleeve ruffles. The girdle is composed of two soft ribbons, blue and green, that lie in a loose bow at the left front.

19 Policemen Ambushed—One Killed

DUBLIN, Oct. 22.—A group of 19 policemen was ambushed at Parkwood, Kings county, today. The driver of one of the police cars was shot dead and one constable was wounded. A member of the attacking party was seen to fall during the exchange of shots.

who's statement of facts about the candidate's personal history. On Oct. 7 these questionnaires were sent out to primary nominees, and a week later to independent candidates. Notwithstanding the shortness of the time, the extent of the answers already received is satisfactory. These answers are to be tabulated in clear and concise form, every man being given exact credit for his views. These records will be given publicly through the press. Again my poor mind is in a political chaos. I am beginning to doubt the wisdom of having put up so many fights for equal suffrage. Here's what's bothering me now: Just when I had it beautifully straightened out in my mind that the issue in the present presidential campaign is the League of Nations, that the democrats want it in order to keep us out of war, and that the republicans do not want it for the same reason; just when I was reasonably sure that Senator Harding, after having hemmed and hawed quite a bit, had repudiated any such pact; just when I had reached the point where all I had to do was to decide whether or not I wanted it myself, along come 31 prominent men advocating an international agreement, and pledging their support to Senator Harding. All that is needed to complete the fiasco is a pledge of support from Henry Cabot Lodge to Governor Cox.

League of Women Voters The Massachusetts League of Women Voters, the organization which succeeds the Massachusetts Equal Suffrage association, is planning a unique method of educating voters, both men and women, in regard to the candidates for public office in this state. The plan is as follows: Upon declaring his candidacy, each candidate will be sent a questionnaire which he fills out, signs, and returns to the league. The questionnaire covers the record and opinions of each candidate, his views on certain progressive and humanitarian measures, together with a "who is

Release for Women who Suffer

The multitude of American women who suffer terribly day after day and year after year from ills peculiar to their sex is almost beyond belief, —yet there is hardly a town or hamlet in the United States wherein some woman, and often many, do not reside who have been restored to health from some of the worst forms of female ills, and often avoided operations by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

These Two Women Tell of Their Experience.

Carrollton, Ky.—"I suffered almost two years with female weakness. I could not walk any distance, ride or take any exercise at all without resting. If I swept the floor or did any kind of work it would bring my sickness on. I was weak and languid, had no energy, and life was a misery to me. I was under the care of a good physician for several months and tried other remedies. I had read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. After taking twelve bottles I found myself much improved and I took six more. I have never had any more trouble in that respect since. I have done all kinds of work and at present am an attendant at a State Hospital and am feeling fine. I shall always recommend your Vegetable Compound."—LILLIAN THARP, 824 South 6th Street, Carrollton, Ky.

Onalaska, Wis.—"Every month I had such pains in my back and lower part of stomach I could not lie in bed. I suffered so it seemed as though I would die, and I was not regular either. I suffered for a year and was unfit to do my housework, could only wash dishes once in a while. I read an advertisement of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for other women and decided to try it. It surely did wonders for me. I have no pains now and can do my own housework without any trouble at all. I will always praise your medicine as I do not believe there is a doctor that can do as much good for female weakness as can Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and you may use these facts as a testimonial."—MRS. LESTER E. WARNER, R. 1, Box 69, Street, Carrollton, Ky.

Mill Stories for Mill Workers

"Jimmy," as everybody calls him, was born 63 years ago on Hamilton street in the old Fort Hill district of Boston. That was in the days before a good part of the section had been carted over to Mill in the Back Bay and Fort Hill was really the name of a hill.

"Jimmy" didn't hang around his birthplace for long, though. While he was still of tender age, his home was transferred to a farm in Gill in the western part of the state. Here, as a lad, he milked the cows, bedded the horses, fed the pigs, chopped wood, and did the sundry other degrading chores that commonly fall to the lot of the growing boy on the farm.

Of course "Jimmy" waxed strong and sturdy as a result of his healthful labors as a young agriculturist. When he was 17 years old, however, he decided to emigrate to Lowell.

He packed his small belongings, therefore, and came to the home of his brother-in-law, Timothy Hurley, in four day and four night watchman were employed, and they had their headquarters over the counting-room. They changed hours from watching from night to day every two weeks.

"Jimmy's" first pay amounted to $3 for a week's work.

When he first went to work for the mills there was a fine orchard where the cloth room is now located. Its trees bore luscious pears and apples, and there were one or two trees of the not so desirable crab apples.

Great horse chestnuts blossomed in the yard in spring and cast their agreeable shade through the summer.

Skating on the Merrimack was the most popular pastime with the mill workers in the days when Jim Cauty was a young man. When the looms ceased throbbing for awhile at noon and at night, the toilers used to clamber down the river's bank and, strapping on their skates, enjoy a checkered-treading spin up or down stream.

The skating was not confined to the toilers in the mills by any means. To skate on the smooth surface of the Merrimack was a widely esteemed pleasure, and people came from quite a distance to enjoy it.

The was much fishing through the ice, too, in those days, and across the river in Centralville was an establishment, known as a "palm garden," where there was exhilaration to be had of a kind not provided for in these days of Volstead aridity.

Day of Heavy Freshets

Mr. Cauty of course remembers days when heavy freshets came tearing down the valley threatening to cause great damage. He remembers, too, the time when Centralville bridge was burned on August 8, 1882. It happened in the night time, and in the morning all of the mill workers who lived on the opposite side were faced with the problem of getting to their jobs.

Workers laid planks across what remained of the burned structure that had fallen into the river, and some of the more venturesome persons walked across on these. Then a number of the mill workers who had boats brought them to the scene and they were used to ferry the other toilers across the river. For several days, according to Mr. Cauty, the boat owners acted as ferrymen without charging for their services. Then someone started charging ten cents for a passage, and all the rest began to feel like kicking themselves because they had not discovered the miniature gold-mine that they possessed earlier.

The ferry-boats coined money until a new bridge was built. They used to land where the electric light plant of the mill is now located.

Mr. Cauty remembers, too, some troublous days during the long years that have passed since he first entered the employ of the Massachusetts mills. He recalls labor disturbances that were serious, and in which fights were frequent between yardmen who were called to effect strikers from the mill premises, and husky opponents.

He remembers, too, the days when there was not a steam engine in the Massachusetts mills, and there were only two slanders and but three drawing-in girls were employed.

Says I and Says Si in Perplexing Problems

"How many boys have you?" says

"This morning as they went to school," says I, "I noted that one was ahead of two boys, one behind two boys, and a boy behind two boys, all my sons."

"Gee Whillikins," says Si, "You've got a large family of boys."

"How comes that idea?" says I. "This is the way I figure 'em," says Si; "one in front and the two he leads, make three, and the one behind them makes four, and the one between the two makes five."

"Wrong again, as usual," says I. "The one in front was ahead of the one behind the one between them. They were walking single file. Only three."

"Now here," says Si, "another problem I have had to work on: Four boys want to cross a lake, but their boat will hold only 100 pounds. Bill and Jim weigh 100 pounds each, while Hugh and Ted weigh but 50 pounds each. I can't figure how they all can get across in that boat."

"Easy enough," says I. "The strongest goes in the boat and goes over, the other three walk around." "No," says Si, "that's not the way. But they did it by letting the two lightest boys go across. Then Hugh brings back the boat and Bill rows across. Then Ted brings back the boat and he and Hugh go over."

"With such a remarkable faculty for solving problems, maybe you can unscramble the jumping frog puzzle," says Si.

"A frog sits in a hole in the center of a 16-acre field; he goes three feet at every jump; how many jumps will take him out?" says I. "That would require figuring on the number of feet from the center of the field to the nearest fence," says Si. "It requires nothing of the kind," says I.

"What does it require?" says Si. "The depth of the hole," says I. "How so?" says Si. "If the hole is three feet or less in depth the frog gets out in one jump," says I.

F. D. ROOSEVELT

REPLIES TO ROOT

ELMHURST, N. Y., Oct. 22.—Ethel Root's position on the League of Nations as set forth in his recent speech and reply to Gov. Cox, "Is that of a sophist," Franklin D. Roosevelt declared in an address here yesterday.

"American voters everywhere," he said, "are heartily sick of the continued discussion by men like Mr. Root of the details of words and phrases in connection with the covenant of the League of Nations. They know that Mr. Harding has said that he wants the league rejected. They know that Mr. Cox wants us to join the league with every American right preserved."

"In regard to Article X, the average voter knows that there is a great difference of opinion among experts as to the exact amount of the obligation by which the United States congress would be bound in case we entered the league without any reservations or amendments. ## Keep Looking Young!

Nobody wants to grow old looking any faster than they can help; some look old at forty while others don't begin to show their age at seventy.

Everybody knows that to keep young looking you have first got to be blessed with good health, and second to do as little worrying as possible. Most of the ills that the flesh is heir to are caused by a disordered stomach, liver or kidneys. These can be regulated and kept in good condition by taking SEVEN BARKS, nature's great remedy of roots and herbs.

Digestive troubles also spoil beauty, rob you of sleep, make dark rings around the eyes and ruin the complexion. Let SEVEN BARKS digest your food and tone up your stomach, then you may eat what you like; bright eyes will soon return, and you will feel fit for your daily duties.

Science says that old age begins with weakened kidneys and digestive organs. If you keep these organs cleansed and in proper working order, old age can be deferred and life prolonged beyond the average age. No better remedy can be found than SEVEN BARKS to keep the stomach, liver and kidneys in good order, thus assuring you good health.

Old-fashioned nature's remedies are the best, so don't fail to keep a bottle of SEVEN BARKS on hand. Get it at your druggist's. Price, 50 cents.—Adv.

CARD. GIBBONS BACKS LEAGUE

Absolutely Approves Pope's Encyclical as "American Citizen and Son of Church"

"We Will Do Our Duty," Says Prelate—Points Out Danger of Delay to World

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—To the list of 15,000 American clergymen who have taken a firm stand for the League of Nations is now added the name of Cardinal Gibbons, who bases his support chiefly upon the encyclical of Pope Benedict, declaring that all states "should unite in one league." In a copyrighted interview with Col. Stephen Bonsal of the Baltimore Sun, published Thursday, the prelate declined to discuss political conditions but talked freely about his desire for world peace.

At the outset of the interview, with Col. Bonsal, Cardinal Gibbons asked him to read about two paragraphs of the pope's encyclical, as follows:

"Things being thus restored, the charity re-established and the nations reconciled, it is much to be desired, venerable brethren, that all states, putting aside mutual suspicions, should unite in one league, or rather in a family of the peoples, calculated both to maintain their own independence and safeguard the order of human society."

What especially among other reasons calls for such association of nations is the need, generally recognized, of making every effort to abolish or reduce the enormous burden of the military expenditure, which states can no longer bear, in order to prevent these disastrous wars, or at least to remove the danger of them as far as possible. So would each nation be assured not only of its independence, but also of the integrity of its territory within its just borders.

"Noble words!" exclaimed the cardinal. "I subscribe to them absolutely, and without reserve, as an American citizen and a son of the church—as well nigh the eldest son of the church."

"What I most like and highly value about the proposed league is first the delay which it imposes upon any and all nations—you must not rush headlong into this thing in which we all run the danger of being involved. We say you must be frank, open and above board, you must place your plans before the world, and they must and shall be carefully weighed. Why, in my judgment, this single, new world regulation will reduce wars to a minimum. Second, thought, and careful consideration of steps to be undertaken is imposed, and on second jobber thought, few will draw the sword.

"And then I like and value that phrase and declaration, 'That it is the friendly right of each member of the league to bring to the attention of the assembly or of the council any circumstances whatever affecting international relations which threaten to disturb international peace or good understanding between nations upon which peace depends.'"

"It shall be the friendly right—I like that immensely. In the next decade—better in the next ten months—I hope it will become the friendly right and the inevitable duty for all nations to combine for the preservation of peace. How often would wars have been avoided if in the past we had acted in this way and under these prescriptions. How often it has been our thought to speak to a sister nation asking that conditions which are fraught with danger to the peace of the world and which threaten our brotherhood should be removed and we have desisted because, well, in diplomatic language, that would have been an unfriendly act?"

"I like the plan for delay, I like the solemn agreement for the prevention of international war which is a sacred status and which, in the words you have just read, His Holiness, the pope, expresses his warm approval. So with the great disaster ahead of us, although we still sit in its dark shadow, we should, and I believe we are, determined to safeguard the order of human society which is in danger to maintain the independence of the peoples within their just borders, and to reduce, if we cannot wholly abolish, the burden of military expenditure."

"Sitting as a counsel of brethren, with the shadow of the great catastrophe still upon us, we should, and I have no doubt we will, draw nearer to one another and take up, in a fraternal spirit, serious, those vexed questions that still remain and which are a grave menace to the fellowship of the forward looking, God fearing, God loving nations. These questions still threaten the peace of the world—that peace whose blessing we are just beginning to enjoy again."

"The world is very anxious, very weary, and many millions of the world's inhabitants are today in most miserable, desperate plight. Delay is dangerous and it means continued cumulative suffering. I know that we will, at an early day, accept our evident responsibilities in the world situation, and at the same time make perfectly clear what they are. Once our responsibility is clearly established and made undeniably manifest, the American people will not sidestep. We will do our duty. We always have."

Those "Little Things"

Why not resolve today to go over your income carefully and eliminate the "little things" that are not really necessary for your family's need?

You will be surprised at the neat sum that could be saved each week.

If it seems impossible to save money, look around and you will find many friends with smaller incomes than yours who save regularly. Perhaps this will give you the courage to try it yourself.

Gompers Declares He Showed Hypocrisy and Deception in Police Strike

WILMINGTON, Del., Oct. 23.—An attack on Governor Coolidge, based on his actions in the Boston police strike of 1919 was made here last night by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor. Mr. Gompers said in an address, that after the police had left their posts, "Governor Coolidge and his police commissioner, knowing full well the city would be unprotected, withheld the power they commanded."

"If the action of the Boston police was a 'crime against civilization,' what terms can describe the action or inaction of Governor Coolidge and his police commissioner?" Mr. Gompers asked, "who but a hypocrite of the rank kind could make a campaign of 'law and order' upon such a record of cunning treachery and deception?"

"There is no right to strike against the public safety by anybody, anywhere, anytime," he declared, "and Governor Coolidge, after having aided and abetted, counseled and advised one of the most vicious blows against a law abiding community ever followed to go uninvestigated and unpunished."

"Imagine the contingency: The possible election of Senator Harding to the presidency and a vacancy for any cause occurring, and Coolidge, the police baiter, the agent provocateur, the coming president of the United States."

Commissioner Curtis, Mr. Gompers said, "after provoking the strike, decided to withhold all police protection under his control in order that the city would be completely at the mercy of the lawless element for over 14 hours, thereby causing a revolution of public opinion and casting a stigma upon the Policemen who had ceased work."

CAPTURED PRISONERS TO FIGHT CUT IN WAGES

BACK IN SING SING

JOSSING, N. Y., Oct. 23.—George Stivers and Martin Bussett, the two escaped Sing Sing convicts captured near Warner N. H., yesterday, were brought back to the prison today by Warden Lewis E. Lawes, and a squad of armed guards.

The prisoners, who had led their pursuers over four states since their spectacular escape last Saturday from Sing Sing, when they felled three keepers and fled in a stolen automobile, were worn out physically. They were unshaven and shabbily dressed, and appeared glad that the chase was over.

"We haven't slept in a bed since we left prison," said Bussett. "It's pretty hard trying to sleep in orchards. We had only two meals and lived most of the time on apples."

Then asked why he had run away when he had only two months to serve, Bussett replied:

"The time comes in every man's sentence when he wants to go. That's why I couldn't stay."

Warden Lawes said that when the prisoners were searched a knife was found in Bussett's shirt and there was an automatic pistol in Stivers' overcoat pocket, containing cartridges.

"We saved bullets for ourselves, if we didn't get away," said Stivers. "We were caught unawares. Armed men surrounded us. If I had the chance, I intended to hold up our guards. Failing to do that, we intended to end ourselves."

Concerning the reason for his escape, Stivers said "What would you do if the farmers were not from Sing Sing, but we knew it was all off when we heard Warden Lawes was there. The men were put in isolation cells. They probably will be transferred to Dannemora prison or Clinton prison, it was stated."

Harvard First to Score in Big Football Battle Against Centre College This Afternoon

CAMBRIDGE, Oct. 23.—The football teams of Centre college and Harvard university, their goal lines increased this season, entered their contest at the Stadium today, determined to keep a clean state. The colleges from Danville, Ky., were outwheeled about 10 pounds to the man, but in Captain McMillan, quarterback, and Weaver, centre, were possessed of two members of Walter Camp's 1919 All-America team.

Centre's unbroken string of victories extends back more than two years and in these games this season the "Praying Colonels" have scored 241 points while whitewashing their opponents. The crimson has scored 103 points to their opponents' none in four games this year.

Governor Edwin P. Morrow of Kentucky, sent the following telegram to the Centre team:

"For God's Sake, Make Good"

"The men in Kentucky are pulling for you, the women are praying for you, the heart of every girl is with you. For God's sake, make good, hit the line hard and low."

The lineup and the officials follow:

Harvard	Position	Centre
Kane	left end	Chinn
Faxon	left tackle	Montgomery
Tolbert	left guard	Ford
Havenmeyer	centre	Weaver
Woods	right guard	Robb
Hubbard	right tackle	James
Gaston	right end	Snoddy
Fitzgerald	quarterback	McMillan
Churchill	left halfback	Armstrong
Owen	right halfback	Whitell
McMillan	fullback	Roberts

Referee, R. W. Maxwell, Swarthmore; umpire, T. J. Thorp, Columbia; field judge, G. N. Bankart, Dartmouth; head linesman, W. G. Crowell, Swarthmore. Periods, 15 minutes.

The huge horseshoe stadium was filled to capacity, fully 37,000 spectators being seated in the tier after tier of concrete seats while at least 3000 additional viewed the game from the top of the stadium or from temporary stands placed around the running track.

Perfect football weather prevailed. The Harvard squad came on the field for preliminary practice about 1.30 p. m., and after a punting, passing and goal kicking drill, retired to their dressing quarters. The Centre college squad did not appear on the field until 1.45 minutes before game time. Previously there had been a final conference between the team, Capt. McMillan and Coach Moran in the visitors' quarters which in turn was followed by the customary prayer which precedes all of Centre's football encounters.

The colleges from Danville were given a tremendous ovation by the assembled thousands when they finally ran into the Harvard football arena. Wrapped in bright green blankets, trimmed with a golden border, they gave the impression of Indians about to take the warpath. Their playing costumes consisted of bright yellow jerseys with white stripes and most of the players wore white leather headgear, in addition to the moleskin football trousers and black leather cleated shoes. The Centre college players were numbered but the Harvard eleven did not wear the distinguishing numerals.

Captain McMillan correctly called the turn of the coin and elected to defend.

"RED" ROBERTS

the north goal, giving Harvard the kickoff, forcing Harvard to kick into the wind.

First Period
Faxon kicked off to McMillan on Centre's 15 yard line and ran it back eight yards before he was thrown. After two line plunges which gained three yards, Whitell punted to Owen on Harvard's 35 yard line, where the Harvard catcher was downed in his tracks.

Churchill gained eight yards around Snoddy, and was finally brought down by McMillan. Horween, aided by excellent interference, plunged through Montgomery for a first down on Centre's 47 yard line. Owen went through the same hole for a first down on Centre's 32-yard line.

Horween picked up seven yards through Centre and Harvard was given five additional yards for off-side play. Churchill, behind splendid interference, swept around a left end Chinn to Centre's eight yard line.

Harvard was set back five yards for off-side play after Horween had failed to gain through Robb. In a run completely across the field, Churchill brought the ball back to Centre's eight yard line before he was forced out of bounds.

Owen Scores Touchdown
On the next play Owen plunged through a large hole made by Montgomery and Ford for a touchdown directly under the goalposts. Faxon kicked an easy goal. Score: Harvard 7, Centre 0.

The touchdown was scored in less than five minutes of actual play. Centre failed to show any ability to hold the Harvard offense in check.

Kregor replaced Ford at left guard for Centre, in an attempt to stop one of the holes that Harvard had uncovered.

Centre kicked off at the resumption of play, the ball being caught back of Harvard's goal line for a touchback.

Harvard brought the ball out to the 20 yard line and on the second lineup punted to Centre's 20-yard line.

On the first scrimmage Roberts out-circled Gaston and ran to midfield before being forced out of bounds.

Captain McMillan in an end run and a plunge against Harvard's centre gained three yards.

A forward pass, McMillan to Snoddy, put the ball on Harvard's 40 yard line but it was called back 15 yards for holding on the part of Centre.

A second pass, McMillan to Whitell, gave Centre the ball and a first down on Harvard's 31 yard line.

McMillan slipped through Hubbard for a nine yard gain, Horween checking him. Roberts in a mass play at the same spot gained a scant two feet.

McMillan made less than a foot at Havenmeyer and on the fourth down, Armstrong made it first down over Hubbard, the ball being on Harvard's 23-yard line. Armstrong aided by good interference swept around Robb's left end for eight yards. Centre was slowing much better offensive play than their defensive efforts when Harvard had the ball. McMillan gained a yard at Faxon's position. Roberts made it first down on Harvard's 13 yard line.

McMillan made a yard along the side line. On a criss-cross play McMillan to Whitell the ball was run across the field with little gain.

GOV. COX EXPECTS TO BE ELECTED

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Governor Cox of Ohio today told several hundred members of the Young American Democratic League that, if elected, he would devote his energy to accomplishing an industrial readjustment throughout the country.

Industrial Engineer in Cabinet

One of the first steps in this direction, he said, would be the appointment of "the highest class industrial engineer available in the country as a member of my cabinet."

Governor Cox said he was "absolutely free and unfettered by campaign promises—even in the matter of appointing a fourth class postmaster."

Expected to Be Elected

"Although I feel myself an utterly free man," he added, "I shall recognize my election as a positive mandate for the League of Nations. I confidently expect to be elected, but I will not consider my election as a personal or party victory, but as a triumph of the great principle which the democratic party represents."

Confusion if Harding Wins

"If Senator Harding is elected, there will be on the other hand a multitude of confusions in Washington. The certainty of this is evidenced by the statements of other prominent republicans. In the newspapers nearly every day, Senator Johnson declares that the republican candidate is directly set against the league, while in the same newspapers former President Taft declares with equal positiveness that Harding is for it."

Confers With Leaders

After speaking to the young Amer-

The coming of Governor Cox to Massachusetts has resulted in the injection of vim and vigor into the democratic state campaign. There can be no question but that Mr. Cox made a favorable impression on the voters by his straight-forward expressions of opinion.

To the friends of the cause of self-government for Ireland he gave the assurance that the present "war of extermination" must not be permitted to continue, and that, if elected president, he would take steps to bring the question before the League of Nations.

As was pointed out by John Jackson Walsh, in a speech at Worcester this week, on any question before the league council regarding Ireland, England would be prohibited from voting as she would be an interested party.

The democratic leaders of the state have taken hold of the work of pushing the fight through to a whirlwind close during the last week of the campaign. Edmund W. Quinn of Cambridge, national committee man, Daniel C. Conkley and Martin L. Lomenzo, in Boston, are working with State Chairman Michael J. O'Leary to get the

FIRST DEATH FROM ANTHRAX HERE

One death from anthrax, a comparatively rare disease, and 52 cases of measles, the largest number to be reported in any one week since the summer of 1916, feature this week's mortality report by the board of health. A total of 29 deaths was reported in comparison with 32 last week and 26 the week before. The rates were 13.37, 11.75 and 17.53, respectively.

There were nine deaths of children less than five years of age and six of these were of children less than a year old. Infectious diseases caused four deaths, diphtheria two, and measles one.

Infectious diseases reported were the following: Diphtheria 10; scarlet fever 7; typhoid fever 1; measles 52; infantile paralysis 1, and tuberculosis 2.

The back field started around Kane's end, and seeing that his path was blocked reserved himself and circled right end for a first down on Harvard's three yard line. Armstrong was stopped in his tracks in a plunge against Harvard's right wing. Roberts attempted to plunge over the same spot but was hurled back as had been his teammate.

Roberts Scores Touchdown
Centre was slow in starting its third attack but when Roberts got under way he slipped through Robb and faced for a touchdown. Weaver kicked the goal, tying the score. Score: Harvard 7, Centre 7.

Harvard kicked to Armstrong on Centre's 26 yard line and the latter picked up seven yards before he was downed.

McMillan broke through Harvard's centre and overstepping to the left as he headed for a touchdown, when he was tackled and thrown by Gaston from the rear. Here the first period ended.

Score end first period: Harvard 7, Centre 7.

FOOTBALL GAMES TODAY

Textile and M. I. T. at Moody Street Campus — High Schools Meet

Snappy autumn weather, conducive to the best kind of football, greeted Lowell gridiron fans this afternoon at the textile school campus in Moody street and Spaulding park to witness two of the biggest local games of the season.

Up at the Moody-street field Lowell Textile met Massachusetts Institute of Technology in an effort to avenge last year's defeat. Coach George O'Hare sent his strongest lineup with the exception of Leonard, one of the front line men, who injured his shoulder in practice yesterday afternoon.

In Concord high, Coach Conway's Lowell high school eleven lined up against one of its strongest foes of the season. Quarterback George O'Hare was out of the game but Ray Liston has been working very smoothly in his place during the week and was expected to run things in a satisfactory manner.

WILL DISCUSS MEN'S DEMANDS

Railroad Men at Request of Miners Vote to Postpone Strike

Sensational Close of a Day of Most Intense Anxiety—Peace Imminent

LONDON, Oct. 23 (By the Associated Press).—The industrial crisis was temporarily bridged late this afternoon when the striking coal miners accepted an invitation to meet the government for renewed discussions of the miners' demands and the railroad men at the request of the miners, postponed their sympathetic strike movement under which the railway employees would have ceased work at midnight Sunday.

This sensational close of a day of the most intense anxiety came as the result of informal discussions during the morning, participated in by representatives of the government, the coal mine owners and the miners' leaders, and a subsequent joint meeting of the national union of railwaymen and miners' executive bodies.

It is generally understood that the government has drafted new proposals for adjustment of the miners' demands which are more acceptable to the mine workers. In any event, the miners decided to accept the invitation to reopen discussions.

The decision was placed before the national union of railwaymen with the request that the railway employees postpone their strike so as not to prejudice the negotiations. The railroad men acceded to the request and postponed their strike indefinitely, pending the discussion with the government.

The miners' representatives will meet the government tomorrow morning.

It is generally assumed that the transport workers, who have been striking time, will not take any strike action so long as there is hope for peace being made between the miners and the government.

STREET CAR FARES
Chamber of Commerce to Recommend Reductions

Definite recommendations regarding a reduction in street car fare rates will be made by a committee of the chamber of commerce that has been studying the subject at a meeting to be arranged between the home rule committee and the trustees of the Eastern Massachusetts street railway. Announcement of this fact was made today by Secretary George F. Wells, of the chamber, who is also a member of the home rule committee.

President W. N. Goodell and members of the chamber's committee have been making an exhaustive investigation of the whole problem of securing lower transportation rates. When the demand is made upon the public trustees for a cut in rates it will be supported with reliable facts and figures.

'Fruit-a-lives' was the only remedy to help me. ## NEWSPAPER STRONGEST ADVERTISING MEDIUM

BOSTON, Oct. 23.—The potency of the newspaper as a national advertising medium is stronger than any other, William A. Thomson of New York, Director of the Advertising Bureau of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, declared at the closing session yesterday afternoon of the first annual New England advertising conference at the Copley Plaza.

"We believe in the newspaper as the national advertising medium," said Mr. Thomson, "because we look upon this country as a collection of markets and not as a single entity that can be treated with one prescription applied in a general fashion. The more attention an advertiser gives to market analysis the more newspaper advertising he will employ."

Advantages of newspaper publicity were considered by Mr. Thomson from three points of view—that of the manufacturer, the retailer and the consumer. The manufacturer gains the benefit of timeliness in the daily newspaper which other means do not provide, he said, to meet emergencies that arise over night. In addition, despite the upward graduation of advertising prices, newspaper advertising is "still the least expensive of advertising mediums. Prices heretofore have been too cheap. I think we are coming to

MAYFLOWER DESCENDANTS

Newly "Proved Ancestor" Is Capt. Richard More, Who Came Over as a Boy of Ten

BOSTON, Oct. 23.—The first instance in more than 25 years in which research has enabled genealogists to transfer the name of a passenger on the Pilgrim ship Mayflower from the list of those from whom descent cannot be proved to the roll of those from whom descent can be proved, was announced today by George Ernest Bowman, secretary of the Massachusetts society of Mayflower descendants. The newly "proved ancestor" is Captain Richard More, who came over in the Mayflower as a boy of 10, under the care of Elder William Brewster.

Captain More later went from Plymouth to Salem and died in that city at the age of 81 years. He was buried in the Charter Street cemetery in Salem, and his gravestone is the only known memorial to a Mayflower passenger, erected at the time of his death. He was married first to Christian Hunt and after her death to Jane Hollingsworth. The "proved" Mayflower ancestors now number 50, leaving 54 from whom descent cannot be proved.

Two republican rallies will be held at the C.M.A.C. hall in Easttucket street Sunday, October 31. The first rally will be held at 1:30 o'clock for the women voters and will be presided over by Mrs. F. N. DeGalar. The second will be at 4:30 o'clock and will be for the men. It will be presided over by Xavier A. Delisle, private secretary to Congressman Rogers. The speakers at both rallies will be Lieut. Gov. Channing Cox, candidate for governor; Congressman John Jacob Rogers, Mayor Perry D. Thompson, and Representative Henry Achin, Victor F. Jewett and Adelard Berard.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

"The Furnace," Powerful Drama of Modern Marriage.
Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday
The usual excellent Sunday program will be carried out at the Merrimack Square theatre tomorrow afternoon and evening. Two big features and various short-reel photoplays will make up the series of attractions arranged by Manager Nelson.

For Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday the feature will be "The Furnace," a powerful drama of modern marriage.

This play is an English one, concerning a London society man and his giddy young wife, who had been a musical comedy favorite before her marriage, and retained her musical comedy disposition and tastes after that interesting ceremony.

Director Taylor is an Englishman, and one who knows well the conventions of English social life. He selected this sensational novel of British life, from the pen of one of Britain's most popular writers, and then in Hollywood, California, set about the task of producing a faithful picture of English life. Only English types were chosen for the cast, and English settings, representing famous London churches, streets, and places of amusement of both money and pains. English fashions were used in costuming the English-looking members of the cast.

English atmosphere was obtained by paying attention to every detail, from English tea-service to English makes of motor cars. This last item, by the way, was no small one, yet Director Taylor insisted that such details were entirely too important to be overlooked. Little English mannerisms were worked into the bearing and gestures of the actors, English customs are faithfully portrayed.

Julia Crawford wrote the adaptation and the picture is interpreted by an all-star cast including Agnes Ayres, Helen Dunbar, Betty Francisco, Milton Sills, Fred Turner, Mayme Kelso, Lucien Littlefield, Robert Bolter and others of note.

In addition to "The Furnace," there will be another big feature attraction for the first half of the week. The International News, a comedy and Topics of the Day will round out the bill.

The feature attraction for the latter half of the week will be Charles Ray, always a popular Lowell favorite, in "An Old Fashioned Boy."

Mr. Ray is seen as a bashful young man who proposes to a somewhat snobbish girl and when she accepts him, takes her to see a bungalow which he has purchased for their home. The girl rather resents her sweetheart's precipitancy in the matter and an estrangement ensues. But the old-fashioned boy, after a series of comical mishaps, finally adjusts matters and he and his fiancée as well as all concerned find happiness.

Playing opposite the star, Ethel Shannon, a film debutante, created a pleasing impression. The support generally was of the best, the work of Alfred Allen, Wade Boteler, Grace Morse, Gloria Joy and the juveniles, Franklin Lee, Virginia Brown and Hal Cooley being clever.

The usual excellent surrounding program will also be carried out on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

BODY OF MURDERED WOMAN FOUND

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—State Island detectives sought today to identify the body of a young woman found dead of strangulation last night in a clump of underbrush near West New Brighton. Assistant Medical Examiner Mord declared that the woman, apparently about 25 years old, had been murdered. A small hemp rope was tied in a hangman's knot around the neck and through the shoulders of a violent struggle. Detectives believed the girl was strangled elsewhere, and brought to the thickets in an automobile and that the body had been in the thicket at least five days.

Amusement Notes

from the circle that up to this time has honored and accepted him. Miss Margaretta Pless will surely be found in a dramatic role that will afford her an opportunity to demonstrate her rare attainments in this particular brand of entertainment. Little need be said in her favor, for it is too well known to the average patron, Milton Brown, the leading man, will appear in the role of the newspaper man who is in love with the young woman. Mr. Brown has given a pronounced tinge of his ability in highly dramatic roles, and this opportunity should give him an excellent chance to demonstrate his accomplishments along this line. Maxwell Driscoll, as the "Spider," will also find ample material on which to indicate his stage ability. The remainder of the cast will be found in the program of the evening.

In staging the piece, Director Bennett will devote his best efforts in giving as near a reproduction of the original production as possible, and assurance is given that it will be of exceptional merit. Mr. Bennett has given us many good presentations, but this one promises to surpass all former endeavors.

"The Spider" is sure to rank with the big hits of the season and tickets are already selling fast for all performances. Better secure your reservations at once and avoid possible disappointment. Box office open from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m. Have your name placed on the subscription list and play safe. It costs no more.

THE STRAND THEATRE

Third Anniversary Week to be Observed With Big Triple Feature Program

The third anniversary of The Strand will be observed this coming week with a triple feature program of extraordinary merit. General Manager Soriano has gone to extra expense in securing for the patrons of Lowell and vicinity an offering that will exceed both in quality and quantity any motion picture bill in New England, and his efforts no doubt will be shown thereby. The first feature, "The Secret Room," a special Metro production with an all-star cast. It is said to be one of the really great thrillers of the year. The cast, which includes George Walsh, the live-wire screen star in "From Now On," and Buster Keaton, one of the screen's funniest men in "One Week." Besides these features there will be the usual Weekly and musical numbers. For the last three days of the week Pearl White in "The White Moll," and Mary Moran in their latest motion picture success, "La La Lucille," will be the feature.

For the sacred concert on Sunday the management has arranged for another of those superior programs of five acts of big-time vaudeville and ten reels of the latest motion pictures.

"Love, Honor and O'Keefe" is a screen adaptation by Eugene Walters, author of "The Easiest Way," "Paid in Full" and other equally successful stage triumphs, and an all-star cast is engaged in its interpretation. The story is one that relates the happenings to a New England old who marries a wealthy church deacon to please his father, when she really loves a New York novelist whose liberal views have created a scandal in her Puritanical community. She has broken with him completely, however, through the news that she has been named in the co-responder in a sensational divorce, but he is a co-responder in

What Is Meant by New Gland Theory

Facts Concerning New Theory of Restoring Health and Strength to Run-Down Men and Women.

The newspapers have reported frequent cases where medical operations where animal glands have been transferred to human beings.

It is now further reported that gland substances taken from healthy young sheep and cattle, prepared in tablet form, are being administered in run-down, anemic conditions requiring building up and where there is evidence of glandular deficiency.

It is claimed in support of this theory that our tiny glands govern the activity and health of the billions of life cells in our bodies. When we are weak, run-down, thin, anemic, listless and it is claimed that our glands are lacking in strength and cannot supply the proper amount of needed help, so what could be more natural than to supply this lack with name only. When she learns of his innocence and that she has been tricked into marriage, she bolts the door of her bridal chamber against her husband. This situation lays a foundation for a dramatic conflict on the theme on whether a woman who has sworn to love, honor and obey her husband should bolt the door against him or whether she should seek happiness where she feels there is true love. The story has a satisfactory ending—one that will be better appreciated when told by the picture itself. The cast presenting the piece is made up of some of the real favorites of the screen.

A photoplay alive with action in "From Now On," the William Fox feature in which George Walsh is seen is one of his best characterizations. The picture tells the story of the dupe of a young man who has just come into a fortune and of his efforts to regain it out of the hands of a gang of swindlers.

Buster Keaton, well and favorably known as a comedy star, will be presented in one of his funniest, humor-making creations, entitled "One Week." It is said to be one of the funniest picture offerings produced this season.

For the last three days of the week, starting with matinee on Thursday, Pearl White, "the marvel of the screen" will appear in "The White Moll." The story is a thrilling blend of the sordid, the beautiful and the adventurous. It has an intensity of dramatic force and a rapidity of action calculated to appeal irresistibly to every sort of audience. The thrilling experiences of the heroine are many, and she accomplishes her aims only after several escapes from what appears to be certain death. The plot centers around Rhoda, a reformed crook, who turns settlement worker. She becomes interested in a released convict who is being forced back to his old life by the gang of which he was a member. Her experiences in saving him are truly remarkable. Litchard C. Travers is the capable leading man.

Edith Lyons and Lee Moran are to be shown in "La La Lucille," an adaptation of the big musical success of the stage a few seasons back. The piece has a full measure of good humor, and some clever characterizations. You will like the offering immensely.

The remainder of the program will have the usual comedy and a Weekly of merit.

RIALTO THEATRE

Management Succeeds in Corraling Two Star Productions For First Three Days of the Week

A double feature bill, introducing Norma Talmadge in "The Branded Woman," and Tom Moore in "The Secret Room," will be the attraction at the Rialto theatre for the three opening days of next week. Both productions were secured after some little trouble and the management was able to bring them to the theatre before the Lowell public. In addition to the two features for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday there will be a third feature, "The Green Flame," the last episode of the "Hawk's Trail," with King Baggott and Johnny Hines in a roaring comedy. "Torrey High," Kertiss' production is an excellent detective mystery picture with thrills galore, a titling climax and an attractive romance. Edith Sterling is known as the female William H. Hart and "The One-Way Trail" shows her in a set of daring riding and shooting stunts that surpass any western actress of the stage.

Next Sunday the Rialto has for its stellar attraction Mary Pickford in "Daddy Long Legs" and Bert Lytell in "The Spender." Too much is known of these stars already to warrant any further introduction and it is safe to bet that they will be seen by a "full house." In addition there will be several vaudeville acts of a high class nature.

The basic substance of the story in "The Branded Woman" has to do with the devilish influence which the designs of the underworld are trying to exert over those above their social station and the striking effect in the production is the artistic likening of the evil tendencies among common people to the Devil and Hades. Other artistic triumphs seen are the other side of a fashion of the Parisian house boarding school for girls on the island, a market place and slave block in the far east and the allegorical scenes of Hades. One of the later scenes introduces a dream by the heroine of the production in which she imagines herself dragged down by society into a hideous whirlpool of slime and which is rescued by the man she loves. This effect was found by the filming of a huge pool, discolored and apparently filled with horrible creeping creatures like the "slugs" things that crawl with wings in the Ring of the Ancient Mariner. The whole story deals with the devilish influence of the underworld, and the later part of his son's income for marrying her. An only daughter whom the judge is sending to a boarding school is the medium for this influence. The role of daughter is taken by Norma Talmadge, screen favorite. The picture is a First National production adapted by Oliver D. Bailey, famous stage play, "Stranded" and is directed by Hugo Ballin.

During the past few months this product has come into quite general use in those sections of the country where its merits as a general tonic have been given publicity. In fact, druggists report that they have never seen a tonic adopted by so many run-down men and women.

So confident are the manufacturers of the merit of Glandex Compound that the druggists are authorized to refund the full purchase price should anyone fail to feel satisfactory benefit after two weeks.

Could Not Walk Up Stairs Without Stopping to Rest

This East Boston Woman Is Now Strong and Well—How She Overcame Anemia

"I was as bloodless as I could be and live," says Mrs. William H. Burck, of 216 Princeton Street, East Boston, Mass., referring to an anemic condition from which she has entirely recovered. "When I was a girl," she continued, "we lived on a farm and I was so weak that I could not walk to a neighbor's without stopping down three or four times to rest. I did not have a particle of color."

"If I exerted myself in any way I had to give up. I could not go upstairs without resting. My heart palpitated so that it scared me. I suffered a lot from shortness of breath, had terrible headaches and was dizzy and nervous. I had no appetite."

"When I was 18 or 19 years old my mother read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and sent to the village for them. After I had taken the first box I felt better. I was stronger and had an appetite. After the third box my mother noticed the color coming in my cheeks and lips. I grew stronger each day and was entirely well after a few more boxes. I am now strong and healthy and am enthusiastic in recommending Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

To build up the blood there is one remedy that has been a household word for a generation. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. They tone up the entire system, make the blood rich and red, strengthen the nerves, increase the appetite, put color in the cheeks and lips and drive away that unnatural tired feeling. Plenty of sunlight, good wholesome food and fresh air will do the rest.

The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., of Scarborough, N. Y., publishes a little book, "Building Up the Blood," which will be sent absolutely free on request. Your druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills or they will be sent postpaid, on receipt of price, 60 cents per box.—Adv.

his big screen successes which will be pleasing to everybody. For Thursday, Friday and Saturday the Rialto will show J. Warren Kerrigan in "The Green Flame," Edith Sterling in "The One-Way Trail," the last episode of the "Hawk's Trail," with King Baggott and Johnny Hines in a roaring comedy. "Torrey High," Kertiss' production is an excellent detective mystery picture with thrills galore, a titling climax and an attractive romance. Edith Sterling is known as the female William H. Hart and "The One-Way Trail" shows her in a set of daring riding and shooting stunts that surpass any western actress of the stage.

Next Sunday the Rialto has for its stellar attraction Mary Pickford in "Daddy Long Legs" and Bert Lytell in "The Spender." Too much is known of these stars already to warrant any further introduction and it is safe to bet that they will be seen by a "full house." In addition there will be several vaudeville acts of a high class nature.

ENTERTAIN LITTLE HOPE FOR KING'S RECOVERY

PARIS, Oct. 23.—King Alexander of Greece, who is critically ill as a result of injuries inflicted upon him by a monkey, passed a very quiet night, according to advices received by the Greek legation here and made public at 10.55 o'clock this morning. It was said the king's temperature was 39 centigrade (102.2 fahrenheit), and that his condition was stationary.

Little hope for the recovery of King Alexander is entertained by Dr. Geo. Vidal, a noted French specialist who has returned to this city from Athens. Professional etiquette prevents Dr. Vidal entering into details of the case, but it is understood he treated the king with injections of serum prepared from the wound itself.

The people of Athens are following the progress of King Alexander's illness with the deepest interest, says the Athens correspondent of the Journal.

"The monarchical wife of the king, known as Mademoiselle Manos, who was a trained nurse, remains at the king's bedside night and day, fighting for his life with all the skill and experience she gained during the war."

MATRIMONIAL

Mr. Orville Clowater and Miss Doris Goodnow Byam were married Oct. 23, the ceremony being performed at the home of the bride's parents, 100 E. 10th St., by Rev. Arthur Stanley Beale, pastor of the Highland Congregational church. At the close of the ceremony the couple left on an extended automobile honeymoon trip and upon their return they will make their home in this city.

Knights—Divon

Mr. Albert James Knights of Littleton and Miss Ethel Madeline Dixon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Dixon, of 107 Livingston Avenue, were married at the home of the bride's parents at 6 o'clock last evening. Rev. Edward C. Downey, pastor of the Grace Universalist church, performed the ceremony. Miss Edna Grayson, a sister of the bride, was the maid of honor and Mr. Perry G. Thompson was the best man. The bride wore pearl white satin with an overdress of Chantilly lace. Her dress was cut on train and her veil caught up with orange blossoms. She carried a basket of roses and a silver vase filled with American Beauty roses and Grapes with tulips. The home was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Following the ceremony a reception was held and later Mr. and Mrs. Knights left on an extended motor trip. They will make their home in Boston.

democratic cause, it is expected, will be reflected in one and possibly two big rallies in Associate hall next week.

The women of the party have arranged for a gathering for Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at which Mrs. Susan W. Fitzgerald of Boston and other speakers of prominence will be present.

Later in the week a rally under the direction of men of the party will probably be held in Associate hall. At this rally, it is expected, John Jackson Walsh, Marcus A. Coolidge, and other candidates on the state ticket will be present. The date for the holding of the rally depends upon the decision of the committee as to the time when it will be possible to have the best array of speakers available.

Two Sunday rallies

The local republicans are to hold two rallies tomorrow afternoon, one for women and the other for men. The purpose will be primarily to advance the interests of the candidates for the legislature, and most of the men whose names are to be on the ballots will take part in the program.

Tomorrow's meetings will probably close the important campaign activities of the local G.O.P. The big rally of their party came on Thursday night in Odd Fellows hall, and was mainly notable for the lack of enthusiasm and the limited size of the audience. The rally had been advertised for days. In advance, but not over 500 people had sufficient interest to make the journey to the hall. This was in somewhat sharp contrast with the reception given to candidate Cox when he visited the city Tuesday evening.

Only a few hours' notice was given of his expected arrival, the hour was one when most people are busy with their evening meals in their homes, and yet upwards of 3600 people assembled at the Middlesex street station to greet the democratic candidate. Some of these people had stopped on their way home from work and waited for an hour or more with their appetites calling for supper for the special train to roll in. There was a heartiness and enthusiasm about the cheers that greeted the governor that was in sharp contrast with the somewhat meagre applause that was in evidence at the republican gathering in Odd Fellows hall.

The Squabble Goes On

The squabble of the rival republican candidates, Fuller and Washburn, with would-be-had-been candidate Warner in the background—further the interest of a three-ring circus under the big top of a state campaign. Charles Sumner Bird, to whom not so many years ago the very name "republican" was synonymous with a program for full measure of entertainment.

The candidates and their friends have now reached the point where they are throwing about promiscuously at each other such epithets as "thief," "liar," and "lunatic."

Fuller, egged on by the Washburn-Bird combination, continues to reiterate his charges of shady dealing in office of Speaker Joseph F. Warner, apparently oblivious to the fact that his accusations are an indictment against the whole republican party that has elected and apparently is satisfied to see a man who, according to Mr. Fuller, is guilty of offenses that might properly be made the cause for his prompt removal.

In a long statement issued today Mr. Fuller again takes up the outdigs against Mr. Warner. He repeats that Hathaaway and Warner are law associates, that Warner is speaker of the house appointed the committee on education of the legislature, and that the Fall River mill owners passed over wealth to employ Mr. Hathaaway to oppose before the committee legislation that was admittedly in the interest of Massachusetts people and their children.

Continuing, Mr. Fuller says: "These facts should condemn Warner in the judgment of the republicans of Massachusetts, and I thank God that the public conscience was sufficiently alive to condemn such practices, though the twin reformers, Bird and Washburn, seem to approve and actually support such wrong doing."

Promotes the Coolidge Cause

Nothing but good for the cause of Marcus A. Coolidge, democratic candidate for the lieutenant governorship, can come out of the Fuller-Washburn-Warner melee. It is probable that a policy of selecting a lieutenant governor crown prince years in advance to ascend to the throne of the governorship, and that they were ready to take a shy at the practice that will put it out of commission, even if the internecine warfare in the republican camp had not broken out. It would seem probable, therefore, that whatever else may be the outcome of the election, Mr. Coolidge will go over the top on election day.

Not much prominence is commonly given in a presidential year to county political matters. Certain conditions that exist in Middlesex county are being talked about this year, and republican state leaders have had their troubles added to by having to try to get from under the responsibility that it is asserted, attaches to the acts of certain G. O. P. office holders. Here is the way in which the republican Boston Herald in an editorial has recently spilled the beans regarding one of the troublesome features of the local situation:

"It is a great mistake to suppose that the only people who play favorites in the festival of public money."

Other cases in the state deserve investigation. It mentions in particular Treasurer J. O. Hayden of Middlesex county as in the latter class because of transactions similar to those for which State Treasurer Burrell was retired from office.

Palmer and Sparks Active

In the local field Jackson Palmer, democratic candidate for congress from the fifth district, is continuing over the district. Every day brings forth several speeches and rallies, and the program will be kept up without intermission until election day. The friends of John T. Sparks, candidate for the seat in the senate now held by Frank H. Putnam, are to hold a meeting in Fisk's hall in Middle street tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock at which added vim will be injected into a vigorous campaign that is now going on. A lot of strong personal work is being put in by Mr. Sparks' supporters and a strong sentiment in his behalf is being built up in the district.

Candidate For Auditor

Mrs. Alice French, democratic candidate for state auditor, is to speak this evening in Lowell. She will speak from the steps of the city hall at 7:30 p. m.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Why is it that no group of men ever assembled in the world can agree as to whether or not a woman is a beauty?

"Because," says Adolph Klausner, famous theatrical producer, "no two women can agree as to what beauty is. Each one has a distinct opinion as to what goes to make up beauty, and she consequently does her best to enhance that quality in herself, thus appealing to that man or men who hold a similar view."

Not being satisfied that Klausner was entirely right, I accepted his invitation to ask five women of his play, "Scrambled Wives"—all of whom have won beauty contests—what their ideas of beauty were. And to make the investigation complete I finished by asking little Edith May, Wisconsin beauty, who is now enjoying the fame resulting from being selected as the most beautiful salesgirl in America.

"Charm, of course," said Juliette drive.

Day, petite and dark. Miss Day hails from Boston and won half a dozen beauty contests there. "A woman could have the most beautiful face and figure in the world and yet not be beautiful. She must have charm to bring out that beauty."

The answer of Betty Barnicoat, a buoyant out-of-doors type, was somewhat similar and yet different enough to matter. "Personality," said she. "But it doesn't even have to be pleasant personality. Added to a pretty face you must have the feeling that a woman is different before you think her a beauty."

"Perfect Profile" "A perfect profile," said Elsie Bartlett, tidian-haired vision of loveliness. You might have expected that because she was chosen by James Montgomery Flagg as having a perfect profile and the most beautiful woman he could find for his picture of the war campaign fund.

drawn for the war campaign fund

"Grace," says Margaret Hutchins, daughter of a well-known banker who was an overnight success in the play. "No woman can be considered beautiful unless she has grace that sets it off and accentuates it." Miss Hutchins is tall and dark and graceful.

"Animation coupled with well assembled features," says Marie Chambers, vivid blond. Miss Chambers has both, according to judges of a stage women's beauty contest held recently. Just "Femininity"

And now—"Simply femininity," says Edith May, the little prize beauty now in Ziegfeld's Follies and the Mayflower Photo Corporation. "Any pretty woman can be beautiful if she has that. I think men love femininity in women better than any other single thing."

So there you are. Mr. Klausner apparently knew what he was talking about. What's your idea of the chief characteristic of beauty?

ORIENTAL INFLUENCE

The Harem Effect Adds Charming Novelty to This Chic Gown

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—The oriental influence is still popular with designers as witness this frock. It is of silk green crepe while the sleeves and the vest are of indestructible voile a little lighter in shade. The embroidery is a square design worked out in gold thread. The harem skirt is draped effectively in back.

American Women Give Much Thought To the Gentle Art of Hair Dressing

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Never have women, at least American women, given so much time and thought and, of course, money to the gentle art of hair-dressing. Everyone is interested in new hair-dressing styles.

In the center, an English girl, Muriel Maryn Harvey, in "Happy-Go-Lucky," draws her hair quite frizzily down to the back of her neck, where she catches it with a silver slide. Then she divides the ends into two strands and curls them over a finger.

Pin Curls Over Ear

It is new, a trifle odd and very good looking, this way Patti Harrold has of doing her hair. She is "Irene" in "Irene" at the Vanderbilt theatre.

Harrold. "Then you make a straight parting down the right side, smooth it down to the ear, where you screw the ends into tight curls, and pin them in a bunch right over the ear. Do the same to the rest of the hair, pinning the curls over the other ear."

For the School Miss

At the right Allyn King of "Ladies' Night" at the Ritzing theatre wears her hair in a simple, girlish way.

The hair is parted a trifle at one side and then drawn down in a careless wavy effect to be caught loosely together with a barrette at the ends. Only the ends are tightly curled. Almost any girl could train her hair to curl sufficiently for this style, however provokingly straight it is naturally.

SOCIETY GIRL WEDS MOUNTED POLICEMAN

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Announcement of the marriage of Miss Louise G. Beaver Webb, one of New York society's enthusiastic horsewomen, to Mounted Policeman T. J. Leonard, of the Central park squad, has created a mild sensation in society circles. The wedding followed a romance of the Central park bridge paths. Leonard is one of the handsomest men in the New York mounted force. The bride is the daughter of John Beaver Webb, a personal friend of the late J. P. Morgan. Photo shows Mrs. Leonard.

Lady Lookabout

Again my poor mind is in a political chaos. I am beginning to doubt the wisdom of having put up so many fights for equal suffrage. Here's what's bothering me now: Just when I had it beautifully straightened out in my mind that the issue in the present presidential campaign is the League of Nations, that the democrats want it in order to keep us out of war, and that the republicans do not want it for the same reason; just when I was reasonably sure that Senator Harding, after having lemmied and hawed quite a bit, had repudiated any such pact; just when I had reached the point where all I had to do was to decide whether or not I wanted it myself, along come 31 prominent men advocating an international agreement, and obliging their support to Senator Harding. All that is needed to complete the farce is a pledge of support from Henry Cabot Lodge to Governor Cox.

League of Women Voters

The Massachusetts League of Women Voters, the organization which succeeds the Massachusetts Equal Suffrage association, is planning a unique method of educating voters. Both men and women, in regard to the candidates for public office in this state. The plan is as follows: Upon declaring his candidacy, each candidate will be sent a questionnaire which he fills out, signs, and returns to the league. The questionnaire covers the record and opinions of each candidate, his views on certain progressive and humanitarian measures, together with a "who is

BROWN AND BLUE IN VOILE BLOUSE

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—The vogue of figured fabrics has brought out some very worthy blouse innovations of which one excellent example is illustrated. Its material is indestructible voile in a pattern which is not a pronounced figure, but vague browns and soft blues on a background of wood shades and, therefore, it can be worn with a skirt of almost any material or color.

The back, as shown, comprises a plaited panel, bloused a bit over a ribbon belt which threads it and then passes over the front which also is plaited, but falls below this belt. A row of brown silk-covered buttons matching the color of the belt, outlines the neck and forms a heading for the sleeve ruffles. The grille is composed of two soft ribbons, blue and green, that tie in a loose bow at the left front.

19 Policemen Ambushed—One Killed

who's statement of facts about the candidate's personal history. On Oct. 7 these questionnaires were sent out to primary nominees, and a week later to independent candidates. Notwithstanding the shortness of the time, the extent of the answers already received is satisfactory. These answers are to be tabulated in clear and concise form, every man being given exact credit for his views. These records will be given publicity through the press. ## Release for Women who Suffer

The multitude of American women who suffer terribly day after day and year after year from ills peculiar to their sex is almost beyond belief, yet there is hardly a town or hamlet in the United States wherein some woman, and often many, do not reside who have been restored to health from some of the worst forms of female ills, and often avoided operations by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

These Two Women Tell of Their Experience.

Carrollton, Ky.—"I suffered almost two years with female weakness. I could not walk any distance, ride or take any exercise at all without resting. If I swept the floor or did any kind of work it would bring my sickness on. I was weak and languid, had no energy, and life was a misery to me. I was under the care of a good physician for several months and tried other remedies. I had read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. After taking twelve bottles I found myself much improved and I took six more. I have never had any more trouble in that respect since. I have done all kinds of work and at present am an attendant at a State Hospital and am feeling fine. I shall always recommend your Vegetable Compound."—LILLIAN THARP, 524 South 6th Street, Carrollton, Ky.

Onalaska, Wis.—"Every month I had such pains in my back and lower part of stomach I could not lie in bed. I suffered so it seemed as though I would die, and I was not regular either. I suffered for a year and was unfit to do my housework, could only wash dishes once in a while. I read an advertisement of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for other women and decided to try it. It surely did wonders for me. I have no pains now and can do my own housework without any trouble at all. I will always praise your medicine as I do not believe there is a doctor that can do as much good for female weakness as can Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and you may use these facts as a testimonial."—MRS. LESTER E. WARNER, R. 1, Box 63, Onalaska, Wis.

THE GREAT AMERICAN HOME

Mill Stories for Mill Workers

James Cauty, yard worker, is one of the oldest employees of the Massachusetts mills.

"Jimmy," as everybody calls him, was born 63 years ago in a little town in the old Fort Hill district of Boston. That was in the days before a good part of the section had been carted over to fill in the Back Bay and Fort Hill was really the name of a hill.

"Jimmy" didn't hang around his birthplace for long, though. While he was still of tender age, his home was transferred to a farm in Gill in the western part of the state. Here, as a lad, he milked the cows, bodded the horses, fed the pigs, chopped wood, and did the sundry other dooryard chores that commonly fall to the lot of the growing boy on the farm.

Of course "Jimmy" waxed strong and sturdy as a result of his healthful labors as a young agriculturist. When he was 17 years old, however, he decided to emigrate to Lowell.

He packed his small belongings, therefore, and came to the home of his brother-in-law, Timothy Hurley, in four day and four night watchmen were employed, and they had their headquarters over the counting-room. They changed hours from watching from night to day every two weeks.

"Jimmy's" first pay amounted to $3 for a week's work.

When he first went to work for the mills there was a fine orchard where the cloth room is now located. Its trees bore luscious pears and apples, and there were one or two trees of the not so desirable crab apples. Great horse chestnuts blossomed in the yard in spring and cast their agreeable shade through the summer.

Skating on the Merrimack was the most popular pastime with the mill workers in the days when Jim Cauty was a young man. When the looms ceased throbbing for awhile at noon and at night, the toilers used to clamber down the river's bank and, strapping on their skates, enjoy a cheek-reddening spin up or down stream.

The skating was not confined to the toilers in the mills by any means. To skaters on the smooth surface of the Merrimack was a widely esteemed pleasure, and people came from quite a distance to enjoy it.

There was much fishing through the ice, too, in these days, and across the river in Centralville was an establishment, known as a "palm garden," where there was exhilaration to be had of a kind not provided for in these days of Volstead aridity.

Day of Heavy Freshets

Mr. Cauty of course remembers days when heavy freshets came tearing down the valley threatening to cause great damage. He remembers, too, the time when Centralville bridge was burned on August 5, 1912. It happened in the night time, and in the morning all of the mill workers who lived on the opposite side were faced with the problem of getting to their jobs.

Workmen laid planks across what remained of the burned structure that had fallen into the river, and some of the more venturesome persons walked across on these. "The number of the mill workers who had boats brought them to the scene and they were used to ferry the other toilers across the river. For several days, according to Mr. Cauty, the boat owners acted as ferries without charging for their services. Then someone started charging for ferriage for a passage, and all the rest began to feel like kicking themselves because they had not discovered the miniature gold-mine that they possessed earlier.

The ferry-boats coined money until a new bridge was built. They used to land near the electric light plant of the mill in the location.

Mr. Cauty remembers, too, some troublous days during the long years that have passed since he first entered the employ of the Massachusetts mills. He recalls labor disturbances that were serious, and in which fights were frequent between yardmen who were called to elect strikers from the mill premises, and husky opponents.

He remembers, too, the days when there was not a steam engine in the Massachusetts mills, and there were only two shavers and but three drawing-in girls were employed.

Says I and Says Si in Perplexing Problems

"How many boys have you?" says

Si.

"This morning as they went to school," says I, "I noted that one was ahead of two boys, one behind two boys, and a boy behind two boys, all my sons."

"Gee Whillikins," says Si, "You've got a large family of boys."

"How comes that idea?" says I.

"This is the way I figure 'em," says Si: "one in front and the two he leads, making three, and the one behind them makes four, and the one behind the two makes five."

"Wrong again, as usual," says I.

"The one in front was ahead of the one behind the one between them. They were walking single file. Only three."

"Now here," says Si, "another problem I have had to work on: Four boys want to cross a lake, but their boat will hold only 100 pounds. Bill and Jim weigh 100 pounds each, while Hugh and Ted weigh but 50 pounds each. I can't figure how they all can get across in that boat."

"Easy enough," says I. "The strongest gets in the boat and goes over, the other three walk around."

"No," says Si, "that's not the way. But they did it by letting the two lightest boys go across. Then Hugh crossed. Then Ted brings back the boat and he and Hugh go over again. Then Hugh comes back alone, and Jim goes across. Then Ted brings back the boat and he and Hugh go over."

With such a remarkable faculty for solving problems, maybe you can unsolve the jumping frog puzzle," says Si.

"A frog sits in a hole in the center of a 15-acre field; he goes three feet at every jump; how many jumps will take him out?" says I.

"That would require figuring on the number of feet from the center of the field to the nearest fence," says Si.

"It requires nothing of the kind," says I.

"What does it require?" says Si.

"The depth of the hole," says I.

"How so?" says Si.

"If the hole is three feet or less in depth the frog gets out in one jump," says I.

EXCITING GAME

"Bob" Hart's Lowell Polo club made a brilliant attempt to halt the onslaught of the New Bedford whalers at the Crescent rink last night, but failed by the margin of 6 to 3.

The game was one of the fastest and most bitterly contested of the season, and New Bedford's victory was due to superior playing. The Whalers have a high class club. With Bill Duggan as the leading goal getter of the league and Wiley doing the rushing and Duffresne, Gardner and Jettie present, the Whalers' defense, the club is well balanced, and the team that score a win over every minute.

Hart and Lewis worked like trojans on the rink for Lowell, while Duffresne played a strong defensive game. Wiley did a good job in front of the goal, and the Whalers played hard and worked as never before, found difficulty in keeping pace with the speedy Duggan and Wiley.

Duggan's exhibition though mainly responsible for the Lowell reverse was so brilliant that it demanded recognition from the crowd. He was here, there and everywhere and twice he took the ball the entire length of the hall for bulleys.

Lowell, but the visiting obstructionists played hard all night. Wiley and Duggan counted while Lowell's best efforts produced one by Hart. The score:

POLO NOTES

The owners of the New Bedford polo team were at the game and greatly enjoyed the outcome.

Bill Duggan is certainly a wonder. He is an artist in all departments of the game and is mainly responsible for the great lead his club has in the pennant race.

Gardner and Duffresne are a classy pair of defensive players. They have held Hart and Davies very effectively last night.

A committee of Lawrence men came to the game last night for the purpose of conferring with President Stone relative to securing a franchise. The visitors said the fans greatly miss the game and are very anxious to return to the league.

13 INDICTED IN BASEBALL SCANDAL

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—Indictments against 13 persons believed to have been implicated in the throwing of games in the 1919 world's series by Chicago American league players, were returned yesterday by a special Cook county grand jury.

The indictments charged conspiracy to commit an illegal act. Further indictments are expected when the jury reconvenes next week, the state attorney's office said.

SUNDAY FOOTBALL

Arrangements Completed For Game on North Common Between O.M.I. Cadets and Indiana Tomorrow

Arrangements between Manager Gargan of the O.M.I. cadets football team and Manager McIntyre of the Indiana second team have been completed for a game between their respective teams on the North common tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

MECHANIC PHALANX

On Saturday, October 30, at the Dracut rifle range, the first annual shooting, target shoot and supper of the Lowell Mechanic Phalanx will be held.

The following cadet players took part in final practice on the North common this afternoon: John O'Connor, Dan O'Connor, Murphy, O'Brien, Walsh, Cassidy, John McElligan, Jim McElligan, Cotter, Payton, Holden, Russ, Mayotte, Stapleton and McDougall.

BOYLE UNABLE TO MEET JACKS

Phinney Boyle, who was matched to meet Freddie Jacks at the Crescent rink last Thursday night, today called off the bout. Boyle has been training for three weeks and felt ill for a rugged bout, but this morning while boxing at the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium, again hurt the hand, which he injured early this summer. A doctor was immediately called and he announced that Boyle was in no condition to box. The matchmaker is now negotiating for a capable substitute.

Joe Thomas, former middleweight champion, who is looking after Young Gardner, was in town yesterday and he announced that his protégé is coming along rapidly, and will soon be ready to jump into the main bout class. He said that his recent victory over Johnny Buckley in Boston has placed him in great demand.

Thomas also announced that he has one of the cleverest bantamweights he has ever seen in action now training at his camp in Diamond Hill, R. I. The speed artist is Tommy Noble of England. The Britisher has a record a mile long, says Thomas, and he would be pleased to show him in Lowell.

BIG FOOTBALL GAME HERE TOMORROW

The Pere Marquette, K. of C. football team, which will play the Lowell Indians on the Fair grounds tomorrow afternoon, is considered one of the best teams in the state. The team was recently considered as an opponent for the Boston college eleven on an open date, but negotiations later fell through.

The players are all noted athletes and their manager expresses confidence in winning over the local eleven. In the visitors' lineup are Collins, Dullea, Jennings and Manning of Boston college; Fahey and Connell of St. Alphonsus; Buckley of the Newport Naval reserve; Santy and Madden of Rosindale, and Thornton and Knox, star high school players.

The Indians plan to use the following lineup: Lynch rfb, Whitehead fb, McIntire lb, Loucheat qb, Lister re, Locke rt, Young rg, Spencer c, Matthews lg, Gleason lt, Donellan le, Egan, Morse, White, Spade, Nolan, reserves.

The officers of the league are J. A. N. Christie, president; Arthur Godfrey, secretary; Joseph Gosselin, assistant secretary; Donat Champagne, treasurer; Hervé Genest, Tancrède L. Blanchette and Romeo Lozeau, directors. The sign of a reliable dealer and the world's best Gasoline

Every motor highway and byway throughout picturesque New England and New York is a part of the long "Socony Trail".

THE Socony gasoline sign is more than a symbol of service—it is a pledge of quality. On the island of Nantucket or in the rural towns of northern Vermont, standard quality Socony gasoline is always obtainable—and always satisfactory.

There are different grades of crude petroleum, different methods of refining it and consequently different qualities of the finished gasoline. Socony is refined from selected crude stock, by the most up-to-date and efficient methods known, under standard conditions. It is a fuel of known excellence—clean, uniform, powerful.

For year-round economy and greatest satisfaction, use the same gasoline regularly. With Socony in your tank and the proper carburetor adjustment, you will notice an increase in your monthly mileage average.

Socony quality and service have made motoring a pleasure and gasoline satisfaction a certainty.

Has Information Regarding Prices of Automobiles and Other Things—Pre-War Prices Will Come No More

To the falseness of a contention that the industry must be stagnant until prices shall have been adjusted to a lower level, no less an authority than a prominent Chicago bank bears witness. This bank, the Continental and Commercial, in a statement given out this week points out that there is no reasonable excuse for expecting prices ever to reach their pre-war levels. In some general lines, such as clothing, it is admitted that there may be recessions, but that these or any others can ever get back to their 1913 levels is strongly doubted. "The consumer," says this bank, "must begin to think in terms of a new and higher price level. Reasons why prices will remain high, as compared with 1913, are many and cogent. They may be found in other factors than supply and demand, labor costs and transportation. There has not been sufficient decline in money and bank credit or sufficient increase in domestic trade to justify anticipation of speedy and marked increase in purchasing power of the dollar."

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Barton

THE PICNICKERS ARRIVE

Pretty soon all the Meadow Grove people began to arrive. The sun hadn't been up very long and the grass was wet with dew. Sam Snake's boy was as wet as any old garden-hose when he got there, and when he said he couldn't get a raincoat to fit him, Mr. Coon remarked that he had a perfectly good umbrella cover he'd send him for nothing. Phil Frog was as happy as a pig in clover for he loved to be wet, you know, and isn't it strange when he is such a dandy? Curly Owl and the Blackbirds, and Bud Blue-bottle were lucky, for they could fly, but poor Tommy Thunders-legger didn't get there until away late, for he couldn't find all of his overshoes. And wasn't Muff Mole lucky, though, for he came the whole way under ground and didn't get a bit damp. Mrs. Woodchuck was awfully ashamed of her family when they got there, for every dud that they wore was as limp as a dish-rag, and she'd stayed up all night washing and starching and ironing, too.

But bless you, nobody cared, and everybody was happy and they all talked at once, and Mr. Scribble Scratch got so hoarse trying to make himself heard, that he had to take a cough-drop.

Nancy and Nick had arranged a lot of games but there wasn't a bit of use trying to start them yet, because the boys were all shivering up and down trees, just running their trousers, and the girls were jabbering awfully about how to make fudge and such things.

Suddenly Mr. Bunny pointed his cane at a large ball hanging from a limb on the willow. "What's that?" he asked.

"Then Nick had time to explain."

CHARTER COMMISSION

The Lowell charter commission made rapid strides in framing a skeleton charter for the city of Lowell at its executive session at city hall last evening and determined upon the general form of government which it will later present to the public for discussion and criticism. What this form of charter is the commission will make known when it is fully developed. Last evening's session lasted from 7:30 to 10:30 and the members will again meet in executive session at 7:30 next Tuesday evening.

Corporal Exonerated for Killing Private

BALTIMORE, Oct. 23.—Corporal Ernest Volk, who last Monday shot and killed Private Charles Pilven of Lynn, Mass., has been exonerated by a board of inquiry, it was learned today. Corporal Volk's explanation that his rifle was accidentally discharged while he was cleaning it, was accepted by the board. Private Pilven was in the camp guard house at the time of the shooting, serving a sentence for being absent without leave. Corporal Volk was acting sergeant of the guard.

Forest Fire Threatens Hyannis

HYANNIS, Oct. 23.—A forest fire that last night threatened the destruction of part of this town and the villages of Centerville and Craigville, was brought under control early today. Many residents who had packed their household goods and prepared to leave continued ready to depart should the wind come up and cause a renewal of the menace. Four cottages were destroyed here during the fire and others were partly buried. Heavy clouds of smoke caused great discomfort and were the cause of slight damage. The fire broke out at the Yarmouth camp ground yesterday morning.

Moretown, Vermont, March 27th 1918.

"I am warranted in having the strongest faith in 'Fruit-a-tives' after receiving such wonderful benefits from them. For years, I was a sufferer with Kidney and Liver Complaints. My back ached; my liver was sluggish; and my whole system seemed out of order.

'Fruit-a-tives' was the only remedy to help me. They strengthened the kidneys, made my bowels more regular and freed me of all the distress caused from the kidney trouble, constipation and indigestion. A few weeks' treatment with 'Fruit-a-tives' made me feel as if I had a new lease on life, and I am glad to make known the great value of these Fruit Liver Tablets."

NEWSPAPER STRONGEST ADVERTISING MEDIUM

BOSTON, Oct. 23.—The potency of the newspaper as a national advertising medium is stronger than any other, William A. Thomson of New York, director of the Advertising Bureau of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, declared at the closing session yesterday afternoon of the first annual New England advertising conference at the Copley Plaza.

"We believe in the newspaper as the national advertising medium," said Mr. Thomson, "because we look upon this country as a collection of markets and not as a single entity that can be treated with one prescription applied in a general fashion. The more attention an advertiser gives to market analysis the more newspaper advertising he will employ."

Advantages of newspaper publicity were considered by Mr. Thomson from three points of view—that of the manufacturer, the retailer and the consumer. The manufacturer gains the benefit of timeliness in the daily newspaper which other means do not provide, he said, to meet emergencies that arise over night. In addition, despite the upward graduation of advertising prices, newspaper advertising is "still the least expensive of advertising mediums. Prices heretofore have been too cheap. I think we are coming" to

The IDEAL-Arcola Radiator-Boiler distributes warmth freely and uniformly throughout all rooms. Wind storms or blizzards have no effect on the distribution of heat to all rooms and it is frequently found that no more fuel is used to heat the whole house than it formerly took to heat one room! Get the information and estimate for heating your home the IDEAL-Arcola way

"The dealer looks favorably upon newspaper advertising because he reads the newspaper and is willing to push a new product if it is advertised in his home city. To the consumer the advantage of newspaper advertising is still more obvious. The 2100 dailies in America have a following of 28,000,000 people, he said, and the 500 Sunday newspapers an additional following of 18,000,000. "The newspaper thus becomes the universal medium, reaching everybody, everywhere, every day."

He said that during the past year $100,000,000 of advertising had been used in the nation's press and that national manufacturers had increased their newspaper budget from $10,000,000 in 1910 to $150,000,000 in 1919.

MAYFLOWER DESCENDANTS

Newly "Proved Ancestor" Is Capt. Richard More, Who Came Over as a Boy of Ten

BOSTON, Oct. 22.—The first instance in more than 25 years in which research has enabled genealogists to transfer the name of a passenger on the Pilgrim ship Mayflower from the list of those from whom descent cannot be proved to the roll of those from whom descent can be proved, was announced today by George Ernest Bowman, secretary of the Massachusetts society of Mayflower descendants. The newly "proved ancestor" is Captain Richard More, who came over in the Mayflower as a boy of 10, under the care of Elder William Brewster.

Captain More later went from Plymouth to Salem and died in that city at the age of 84 years. He was buried in the Charter Street cemetery in Salem, and his gravestone is the only known memorial to a Mayflower passenger, erected at the time of his death. He was married first to Christian Hunt and after her death to Jane Hollingsworth. The "proved" Mayflower ancestors now number 50, leaving 56 from whom descent cannot be proved.

STRIKES AND SPARES

Brad of the Appleton Mill league must know the pinboys.

Hinkle of the same league had his fighting toes on Thursday night.

The Dye House boys are wearing the golden smile.

Chester Martel of this city, New England duckpin champion, defeated "Jack" Casey of Lawrence in a 10-string bowling match in the Lawrence Y.M.C.A. last week by 35 pins. His winning margin was small, but his backers claim that he took the game easy. The strings were as follows:

Casey—105, 87, 91, 95, 112, 91, 121, 92, 116—total 1022.

The bowling season started out in great style, but with the curtailment of work and the closing of the mills many bowlers will be quiet. The Lawrence Manufacturing league was scheduled to bowl at Kitteridge's Thursday night, but on account of the curtailment of work the bowlers have postponed the games until work starts up again.

WARD EIGHT LEADS

Has More Voters Than Any Other Ward

Ward 8 has the largest total enrollment of voters of any ward in the city, according to a complete registration tabulation made public by the board of election commissioners today. There are 1016 voters in Ward 8, the largest number of men voters of any ward in the city as well as the largest number of women voters. Precinct 1 of this ward has the largest number of men and women voters of any of the 28 precincts in the city. There are 1042 men voters registered there and 593 women voters.

The smallest registration among the nine wards of the city is in Ward 3 where the total registration of both men and women is only 1695.

Owing to the advent of woman suffrage and the fact that there was a record-breaking registration in Lowell between the state primaries and the final day for registration for the state election, there has been more or less speculation as to just what wards and precincts have gained most materially from the influx of new voters. The following figures come from the official records of the election commission, showing just how many men and women are entitled to vote in every one of the 28 precincts of the city:

ROOT IS WRONG, DECLARES COLBY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—Secretary Colby issued a statement last night, asserting that there was "a plain misstatement of fact" in the recent address made by Elihu Root, dealing with the League of Nations covenant.

"I fear that the only point in Mr. Root's mind was to serve his party," Mr. Colby's statement said. "Mr. Root is wrong. What he says is wrong. What he says is wrong. I half suspect Mr. Root knows this."

Mr. Colby addressed his statement particularly to the question of Article X of the covenant as presented by Mr. Root.

"Mr. Root's statement that Article X is an attempt to carry over and continue for all time, as part of the organization to preserve peace, the exercise of power by the conquering nations in closing the war, is a plain misstatement of fact," Mr. Colby said. "Indeed it is a complete inversion of the truth."

TRUSTS GRIP NEW YORK

Have Built Wall Around City Greater Than Great Wall of China, Says Mayor

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (By the Associated Press).—New York is ready to suspend all public work until it is learned if there was "open competition in bidding for the work."

This announcement was made here late yesterday by Mayor Hylan when the legislative committee adjourned until Nov. 4, after its counsel had asserted it had only scratched the surface in its investigation of the "building trust."

Developments came in a dramatic fashion yesterday afternoon after Mayor Hylan had addressed the board of estimate, declaring that the building trust, the milk trust, the coal trust and the other trusts have built a wall about New York greater than the Great Wall of China.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE
"The Furnace," Powerful Drama of Modern Marriage, the Feature
 Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday
 The usual excellent Sunday program will be carried out at the Merrimack Square theatre tomorrow afternoon and evening. Two big features and various short-reel photoplays will make up the series of attractions arranged by Manager Nelson.
 For Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday the feature will be "The Furnace," a powerful drama of modern
 marriage.

This play is an English one, concerning a London society man and his giddy young wife, who had been a musical comedy favorite before her marriage, and retained her musical comedy disposition and tastes after
 that interesting ceremony.
 Director Taylor is an Englishman,
 and one who knows well the conventions of English social life. He selected this sensational novel of British life, from the pen of one of Britain's most popular writers, and then

 in Hollywood, California, set about the task of producing a faithful picture of English life. Only English types were chosen for the cast, and English settings, representing famous London
 churches, streets, and places of amusement, were erected at enormous cost of both money and pains. English fashions were used in costume, the English-looking members of the cast;
 English atmosphere was obtained by paying attention to every detail, from English tea to the English makes of motor cars. This last item by the way, was no small one, yet Director Taylor insisted that such details were entirely too important to be overlooked. Little English mannerisms were worked into the bearing and features of the actors, English customs are faithfully portrayed.
 Julia Crawford Ivers wrote the adaptation and the picture is interpreted
 by an all-star cast including Agnes Ayres, Jerome Patrick, Theodore Roberts, Helen Dunbar, Betty Francisco,
 Milton Sills, Fred Turner, Mayme Kel-
 so, Lucien Littlefield, Robert Bolder
 and others of note.

In addition to "The Furnace," there
 will be another big feature attraction for the first half of the week.
 The International News, a comedy and Topics of the Day will round out the bill.

The feature attraction for the latter
 half of the week will be Charles Ray,
 always a popular Lowell favorite, in
 "An Old Fashioned Boy."
 Mr. Ray is seen as a bashful young man who proposes to a somewhat snobbish girl and when she accepted
 him, takes her to see a bungalow
 which he has purchased for their home. The girl rather resents her sweetheart's precipitancy in the matter and an estrangement ensues. But the old-fashioned boy, after a series
 of comical mishaps, finally adjusts
 matters and he and his fiancée as well
 as all concerned find happiness.

Playing opposite the star, Ethel
 Shannon, a film debutante, created a pleasing impression. The support generally was of the best, the work of
 Alfred Allen, Wade Boteler, Grace
 Morse, Gloria Joy and the juveniles,
 Frankie Lee, Virginia Brown and Hal
 Cooley being clever.

The usual excellent surrounding program will also be carried out on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

 Miss Norton and Paul Nicholson, Dro-thy Wahl, Almont & Dumont, Earle &
 Bartlett, Dike Thomas and Tommy Gordon.

Next week Farrell Taylor, one of
 the funniest of blackface comedians,
 will appear with his versatile company
 in "The African Duke." This is a musical farce. Taylor takes care of the fun and he has with him two splendid women instrumentalists, Carleena Diamond, vaudeville's youngest harpist,
 and Edith Swan, a celebrated iron-bonist. This act is built along unusual lines. There is action in every second
 of it.

A young lady with a manner quite magnetic is Clara Howard, a singing comedienne she has individuality, and as a mimic she has brought to the stage probably the most accurate and decidedly entertainingly funny
 imitation of Chaplin. And she is constantly a "live wire."

"Trying to Please" is a worthy under-taking, and so Anderson and Yvel have given that as the name of their
 act. They are roller skaters, but they put comedy into their work which is a new line for skaters. Everywhere
 they have appeared their efforts at entertainment have been successful.

Holliday and Willette are not unknown here. They have an apparently humorous sketch called "Detailed." That they are detailed to make fun isn't to be doubted by anybody. Certain it is that no man and woman work any harder than do they,
 and their work is always full of results.

BODY OF MURDERED WOMAN FOUND

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—State island detectives sought today to identify the body of a young woman found dead of strangulation last night in a clump of underbrush near West New Brighton. Assistant Medical Examiner Mord declared that the woman, apparently about 25 years old, had been murdered. A small hemp rope was tied in a hangman's knot around the neck and the body showed evidences of a violent struggle.

Detectives believed the girl was strangled elsewhere, and brought to the thickets in an automobile and that the body had been in the thickets at least five days.

from the circle that up to this time has honored and accepted him.

Miss Margaret Morris will serve as found in a dramatic role that will afford her an opportunity to again demonstrate her rare attainments in this particular branch of entertainment. Little need be said in her favor, for it is too well known to the average patron. Milton Byron, the leading man, is approved in the role of the newspaper man who is in love with the young woman. Mr. Byron has given a pronounced tinge of his ability in highly dramatic roles, and this opportunity should give him an excellent chance to demonstrate his accomplishments along this line. Maxwell Brisson, as the "Spider," will also find ample material on which to display his capabilities, while the remainder of the cast will be found in congenial roles.

In staging the piece, Director Bennett will devote his best efforts in giving it as near a reproduction of the original presentation as is possible, and assurance is given that it will be of exceptional merit. The production has given us many good presentations, but this one promises to surpass all former endeavors.

"The Spider" is sure to rank with the big hits of the season and tickets are already selling fast for all performances. Better secure your reservations at once and avoid possible disappointment. Box office open from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m. Have your name placed on the subscription list and play safe. It costs no more.

THE STRAND THEATRE

Third Anniversary Week to be Observed With Big Triple Feature Program

The third anniversary of The Strand will be observed the coming week with a triple feature program of extraordinary merit. General Manager Soriero has gone to extra expense in securing for the patrons of Lowell and vicinity an offering that will exceed, both in quality and quantity, any motion picture bill in New England, and his efforts no doubt will be shown the appreciation they so richly deserve by the presence of capacity audiences at all performances.

The first three days of the week, starting with matinee Monday, the feature events on the bill will be "Love, Honor and Obedience," a special Metro production with an all-star cast. It is said to be one of the really great achievements of the year. The cast will include George Walsh, the live-wire screen star in "From Now On," and Buster Keaton, one of the screen's funniest men in "One Week." Besides these features there will be the usual weekly and musical numbers. For the last three days of the week, "The White Moll," and Lyons and Moran in their latest comedy drama success, "La La Lucille," will be the feature.

For the sacred concert on Sunday the management has arranged for another of those superior programs of live acts of big-time vaudeville and ten reels of the latest motion pictures.

"Love, Honor and Obedience" is a screen adaptation by Eugene Walters author of "East is West," "Raid in Fistic" and other equally successful stage triumphs, and an all-star cast is engaged in its interpretation. The story is one that relates the happenings to a New England girl who marries a wealthy church deacon to please her father, when she really loves a New York novelist, whose liberal views have created a scandal in her father's community. She has broken with him completely, however, through the news that he has been named as the co-respondent in a sensational divorce. But he is a co-respondent in

What Is Meant by New Gland Theory

Facts Concerning New Theory of Restoring Health and Strength to Run-Down Men and Women.

The newspapers have reported frequent cases of surgical operations where animal glands have been transferred to human beings.

It is now further reported that gland substances taken from healthy young sheep and cattle, prepared in tablet form, are being administered in run-down, anemic conditions requiring building up and where there is evidence of glandular deficiency.

It is claimed in support of this theory that our tiny glands govern the activity and health of the billions of life cells in our bodies. When we are weak, run-down, thin, anemic, listless and it is claimed that our glands are lacking in strength and cannot supply the proper amount of needed help, so what could be more natural than to supply this lack with

Gland extracts of healthy animals? The Glandex Company, Inc., 244 W. 23rd St., N. Y., supply in the form of a tablet under the name of Glandex Compound, a combination of gland substances with iron and other tonic agents which also help nature restore health and strength.

During the past few months this product has come into quite general use in those sections of the country where its merits as a general tonic have been given publicity. In fact, druggists report that they have never seen a tonic adopted by so many run-down men and women.

So confident are the manufacturers of the merit of Glandex Compound that the druggists are authorized to refund the full purchase price should anyone fail to feel satisfactory benefit after two weeks.

Each box of $1.00 will be paid by the Glandex Company, Inc., in the event of a refund. Glandex Compound does not contain genuine desiccated gland substance (popularly known as Gland Extracts) from sheep and cattle.—Adv.

That is a question that only a skillful dentist is able to decide, when it comes to a troublesome tooth. In most cases, it can be treated successfully and be saved.

But if it has to come out, we perform that task without pain or inconvenience to our patient. That's what expert, modern dentistry does.

Could Not Walk Up Stairs Without Stopping to Rest

This East Boston Woman Is Now Strong and Well—How She Overcame Anemia

"I was as bloodless as I could be and live," says Mrs. William R. Burk, of 215 Princeton street, East Boston, Mass., referring to an anemic condition from which she has entirely recovered. "When I was a girl," she continued, "we lived on a farm and I was so weak that I could not walk to a neighbor's without sitting down three or four times to rest. I did not have a particle of color.

"I exerted myself in any way I had to give up. I could not go upstairs without resting. My heart palpitated so that it scared me. I suffered a lot from shortness of breath, had terrible headaches and was dizzy and nervous. I had no appetite.

"When I was 18 or 19 years old my mother read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and sent to the village for them. After I had taken the first box I felt better. I was stronger and had an appetite. After the third box my mother noticed the color coming in my cheeks and lips. I grew stronger each day and was entirely well after a few more boxes. I am now strong and healthy and an enthusiastic recommender of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

To build up the blood there is one remedy that has been a household word for a generation. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. They tone up the entire system, make the blood rich and red, strengthen the nerves, increase the appetite, put color in the cheeks and lips and drive away that unnatural, sickly, yellowish color of sunlight, good wholesome food and fresh air will do the rest.

The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., of Schenectady, N. Y., publishes a little book, "Building Up the Blood" which will be sent absolutely free on request. Your druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills or they will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box.—Adv.

his big screen successes which will be pleasing to everybody.

For Thursday, Friday and Saturday the Rialto will show J. Warren Kerrigan in "The Green Flame," Edith Sterling in "The One-Way Trail," the last episode of the "Hawaii Trail," with King Baggett and Johnny Hines in a roaring comedy, "Torchy in High." Kerrigan's production is an excellent detective-mystery picture with thrills, a most fitting climax and an attractive romance. Edith Sterling is known as the female William S. Hart and "The One-Way Trail" shows her in a set of daring riding and shooting stunts that surpass any western actress of the stage.

Next Sunday the Rialto has for its stellar attraction Mary Pickford in "Daddy Long Legs" and Bert Lytell in "The Spender." Too much is known of these stars already to warrant any further introduction and it is safe to say that they will be seen "full house." In addition there will be several vaudeville acts of a high class nature.

ENTERTAIN LITTLE HOPE FOR KING'S RECOVERY

PARIS, Oct. 23.—King Alexander of Greece, who is critically ill as a result of injuries inflicted upon him by a monkey, passed a very quiet night, according to advices received by the Greek legation here and made public at 10.55 o'clock this morning. It was said the king's temperature was 39 centigrade (102.2 fahrenheit), and that his condition was stationary.

Little hope for the recovery of King Alexander is entertained by Dr. Geo. Vidal, a noted French specialist who has returned to this city from Athens. Professional etiquette prevents Dr. Vidal entering into details of the case, but it is understood he treated the king with injections of serum prepared from the wound itself.

The people of Athens are following the progress of King Alexander's illness with the deepest interest, says the Athens correspondent of the Journal. The morganatic wife of the king, known as Mademoiselle Skanos, who was a trained nurse, remained at the king's bedside night and day, fighting for his life with all the skill and experience she gained during the war.

MATRIMONIAL

Mr. Orville C. Cawter and Miss Doris Goodnow Byam were married Oct. 20, the ceremony being performed at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Byam, 79 Canton street by Rev. Arthur Stanley, pastor of the Highland Congregational church.

At the close of the ceremony the couple left on an extended automobile honeymoon trip and upon their return they will make their home in this city.

Knight-Dixon

Mr. Albert James Knights of Littleton and Miss Ethel Madeline Dixon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Dixon, of 107 Livingston avenue, were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents at 10 o'clock last evening. Rev. Edward C. Downey, pastor of the Grace Universalist church, performed the ceremony. Miss Edna Graves Dixon, a sister of the bride, was the maid of honor and Mr. Perry C. Thompson was the best man. The bride wore pearl white satin with an overdress of Chantilly lace. Her dress was cut in train and her veil caught with orange blossoms. She carried a basket of the white and orange. The maid of honor wore American beauty net with an overdress of silver tulle caught up with rose buds and carried a silver basket filled with American Beauty roses and draped with tulle. The home was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Following the ceremony a reception was held and later Mr. and Mrs. Knights left on an extended motor trip. They will make their home in Boston.

democratic cause, it is expected, will be reflected in one and possibly two big rallies in Associate hall next week.

The women of the party have arranged for a gathering for Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at which Mrs. Susan W. Fitzgerald of Boston and other speakers of prominence will be present.

Later in the week a rally under the direction of men of the party will probably be held in Associate hall. At this rally, it is expected, John Jackson Walsh, Marcus A. Coolidge, and other candidates on the state ticket will be present. The date for the holding of the rally depends upon the decision of the state committee as to the time of interest to make the journey to the hall. This was in some sharp contrast with the reception given to Candidate Cox when he visited the city Tuesday evening.

Only a few hours' notice was given of his expected arrival, the hour was one when most people are busy with their evening meals in their homes, and yet upwards of 3000 people assembled at the Middlesex street station to greet the democratic candidate. Some of these people had stopped on their way home from work and waited for an hour or more with their appetites calling for supper for the special train to roll in. There was a heartiness and enthusiasm about the cheering that greeted the Governor that was in sharp contrast with the soured what meagre applause that was in evidence at the republican gathering in Odd Fellows hall.

The Squabble Goes On

The squabble of the rival republican candidates, Fuller and Washburn—with would-be-been candidate Warner in the background—furnishes the interest of a three-ring circus under the big top of the state campaign. Charles Sumner Bird, to whom not so many years ago the very name "republican" was anathema, is thrown into the program for full measure of entertainment.

The candidates and their friends have now reached the point where they are throwing about promiscuously at each other such epithets as "traitor," "murderer" and "liar."

Fuller, egged on by the Washburn-Bird combination, continues to reiterate his charges of shady dealing in office of Speaker Joseph P. Warner, apparently oblivious to the fact that his accusations are an indictment against the whole republican party that has elected and apparently is satisfied to elect a man who, according to Mr. Fuller, is guilty of offenses that might properly be made the cause for his prompt removal.

In a long statement issued today Mr. Fuller again takes up the cudgels

against Mr. Warner. He repeats that Hathaway and Warner are law associates, that Warner as speaker of the House appointed the committee on education of the legislature, and that the Fall River mill owners passed over all the other attorneys of the commonwealth to employ Mr. Hathaway to oppose before the committee legislation that was admittedly in the interest of Massachusetts people and their children.

Continuing, Mr. Fuller says: "These facts should condemn Warner in the judgment of the republicans of Massachusetts, and I thank God that the public conscience was sufficiently alive to condemn such practices, though the twin reformers, Bird and Washburn, seem to approve and actually support such wrong doing."

Promotes the Coolidge Cause

Nothing but good for the cause of Marcus A. Coolidge, democratic candidate for the lieutenant governorship, can come out of the Fuller-Washburn-Warner melee. It is probable that a large share of the voters of the commonwealth have tired of the republican policy of selecting a lieutenant governor crown prince years in advance to ascend to the throne of the governorship, and that they were ready to take a shy at the practice that will put it out of commission, even if the internecine warfare in the republican camp had not broken out. It would seem probable, therefore, that whatever else may be the outcome of the election, Mr. Coolidge will go over the top on election day.

Not much prominence is commonly given in a presidential year to county political matters. Certain conditions that exist in Middlesex county are being talked about this year, and republican state leaders have had their troubles added to by having to try to get from under the responsibility that it is asserted attaches to the acts of certain G. O. P. office holders. Here is the way in which the republican Boston Herald in an editorial has recently spilled the beans regarding one of the troublesome features of the local situation:

"It is a great mistake to suppose that Fred Barrett and his friends are the only people who play favorites in the bestowal of public money. Other cases in the state deserve investigation. It mentions in particular Treasurer J. O. Hayden of Middlesex county as in the latter class because of transactions similar to those for which State Treasurer Barrett was retired from office."

Palmer and Sparks Active

In the local field Jackson Palmer, democratic candidate for congress from the fifth district, is continuing his vigorous speaking campaign all over the district. Every day brings forth several speeches and rallies, and the program will be kept up without intermission until election eve. The friends of John T. Sparks, candidate for the seat in the senate now held by Frank H. Putnam, are to hold a meeting in Elks' hall in Middle street tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at which added vim will be injected into a vigorous campaign that is now going on. A lot of strong personal work is being put in by Mr. Sparks' supporters and a strong sentiment in his behalf is being built up in the district.

Candidate for Auditor

Mrs. Alice Grant, democratic candidate for state auditor, is to speak this evening in Lowell. She will speak from the steps of the city hall at 7.30 p. m.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Why is it that no group of men ever assembled in the world can agree as to whether or not a woman is a beauty?

"Because," says Adolph Klausner, famous theatrical producer, "no two women can agree as to what beauty is. Each one has a distinct opinion as to what goes to make up beauty and she consequently does her best to appeal to that man or men who hold a similar view."

Not being satisfied that Klausner was entirely right, I accepted his invitation to ask five women of his play, "Scrambled Wives"—all of whom have won beauty contests—what their ideas of beauty were. And to make the investigation complete I finished by asking little Edith May, Wisconsin beauty, who is now enjoying the fame resulting from being selected as the most beautiful salesgirl in America.

"Charm, Of Course"

"Charm, of course," said Juliette Day.

Day, petite and dark, Miss Day hails from Boston and won half a dozen beauty contests there. "A woman could have the most beautiful face and figure in the world and yet not be beautiful. She must have charm to bring out that beauty."

The answer of Betty Barnicoat, a buoyant out-of-doors type, was somewhat similar and yet different enough to matter.

"Personality," said she. "But it doesn't even have to be pleasant personality. Added to a pretty face you must have the feeling that a woman is different before you think her a beauty."

"Perfect Profile"

"A perfect profile," said Elsie Bartlett, titian-haired vision of loveliness. You might have expected that because she was chosen by James Montgomery Flagg as having a perfect profile and the most beautiful woman he could find for his picture of famous beauties drawn for the war campaign fund.

"Grace," says Margaret Hutchins, daughter of a well-known banker who was an overnight success in the play. "No woman can be considered beautiful unless she has grace that sets it off and accentuates it." Miss Hutchins is tall and dark and graceful.

"Animation coupled with well assembled features," says Marie Chambers, vivid blond. Miss Chambers has both, according to judges of a stage women's beauty contest held recently.

Just "Femininity"

And now—"Simply femininity," says Edith May, the little prize beauty now in Ziegfeld's Follies and the Mayflower Photo Corporation. "Any pretty woman can be beautiful if she has that I think men love femininity in women better than any other single thing."

So there you are, Mr. Klausner apparently knew what he was talking about.

What's your idea of the chief characteristic of beauty?

ORIENTAL INFLUENCE

The Harem Effect Adds Charming Novelty to This Chic Gown

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—The oriental influence is still popular with designers as witness this frock.

It is of pale green crepe while the sleeves and the vest are of indestructible voile a little lighter in shade. The embroidery is a square design worked out in gold thread.

American Women Give Much Thought To the Gentle Art of Hair Dressing

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Never have women, at least American women, given so much time and thought and, of course, money to the gentle art of hair-dressing. Everyone is interested in new hair-dressing styles.

In the center, an English girl, Muriel Martyn Harvey, in "Happy-Go-Lucky," draws her hair quite frizzily down to the back of her neck, where she catches it with a silver slide. Then she divides the ends into two strands and curls them over a finger.

Pile Curls Over Ear

It is new, a trifle odd and very good looking, this way Patti Harrold has of doing her hair. She is "Irene" in "Irene" at the Vanderbilt theatre.

Harrold. "Then you make a straight parting down the right side, smooth it down to the ear, where you screw the ends into tight curls, and pin them in a bunch right over the ear. Do the same to the rest of the hair, pinning the curls over the other ear."

For the School Miss

At the right Allyn King of "Ladies' Night" at the Elling theatre wears her hair in a simple, girlish way.

The hair is parted a trifle at one side and then drawn down in a careless wavy effect to be caught loosely together with a barrette at the ends. Only the ends are tightly curled. Almost any girl could train her hair to curl sufficiently for this style, however provokingly straight it is naturally.

FOR OLDER SISTER THE TIGHT CURLS, FOR THE SUB-DER THE CURLS CARELESSLY CAUGHT TOGETHER.

SOCIETY GIRL WEDS MOUNTED POLICEMAN

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Announcement of the marriage of Miss Louise G. Beaver Webb, one of New York society's enthusiastic horsewomen, to Mounted Policeman T. J. Leonard, of the Central park squad, has created a mild sensation in society circles. The wedding followed a romance of the Central park bridle paths. Leonard is one of the handsomest men in the New York mounted force. The bride is the daughter of John Beaver Webb, a personal friend of the late J. P. Morgan. Photo shows Mrs. Leonard.

Lady Lookabout

Again my poor mind is in a political chaos. I am beginning to doubt the wisdom of having put up 50 many fights for equal suffrage. Here's what's bothering me now: Just when I had it beautifully straightened out in my mind that the issue in the present presidential campaign is the League of Nations, that the democrats want it in order to keep us out of war, and that the republicans do not want it for the same reason; just when I was reasonably sure that Senator Harding, after

League of Women Voters

The Massachusetts League of Women Voters, the organization which succeeds the Massachusetts Equal Suffrage Association, is planning a unique method of educating voters, both men and women, in regard to the candidates for public office in this state. The plan is as follows: Upon declaring his candidacy, each candidate will be sent a questionnaire which he fills out, signs, and returns to the league. The questionnaire covers the record and opinions of each candidate, his views on certain progressive and humanitarian measures, together with a "who is

BROWN AND BLUE IN VOILE BLOUSE

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—The vogue of figured fabrics has brought out some very worthy blouse innovations of which one excellent example is illustrated. Its material is indestructible voile a pattern which is not a pronounced figure, but vague browns and soft blues on a background of wood shades and, therefore, it can be worn with a skirt of almost any material or color.

The back, as shown, comprises a plaited panel, moussed a bit over a ribbon belt which threads it and then passes over the front which also, is plaited, but falls below this belt. A row of brown silk-covered buttons matching the color of the belt, outlines the neck and forms a heading for the sleeve ruffles. The girle is composed of two soft ribbons, blue and green, that tie in a loose bow at the left front.

19 Policemen Ambushed—One Killed

who's statement of facts about the candidate's personal history. On Oct. 7 these questionnaires were sent out to primary nominees, and a week later to independent candidates. Notwithstanding the shortness of the time, the extent of the answers already received is satisfactory. These answers are to be tabulated in clear and concise form, every man being given exact credit for his views. These records will be given publicity through the press. This is a free service offered in the interests of intelligent voting. While primarily done by women for women, men voters will find the service of great value.

Release for Women who Suffer

The multitude of American women who suffer terribly day after day and year after year from ills peculiar to their sex is almost beyond belief, —yet there is hardly a town or hamlet in the United States wherein some woman, and often many, do not reside who have been restored to health from some of the worst forms of female ills, and often avoided operations by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

These Two Women Tell of Their Experience.

Carrollton, Ky.—"I suffered almost two years with female weakness. I could not walk any distance, ride or take any exercise at all without resting. If I swept the floor or did any kind of work it would bring my sickness on. I was weak and languid, had no energy, and life was a misery to me. I was under the care of a good physician for several months and tried other remedies. I had read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. After taking twelve bottles I found myself much improved and I took six more. I have never had any more trouble in that respect since. I have done all kinds of work and at present am an attendant at a State Hospital and am feeling fine. I shall always recommend your Vegetable Compound."—LILLIAN THARP, 824 South 6th Street, Carrollton, Ky.

Onalaska, Wis.—"Every month I had such pains in my back and lower part of stomach I could not lie in bed. I suffered so it seemed as though I would die, and I was not regular either. I suffered for a year and was unfit to do my housework, could only wash dishes once in a while. I read an advertisement of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for other women and decided to try it. It surely did wonders for me. I have no pains now and can do my own housework without any trouble at all. I will always praise your medicine as I do not believe there is a doctor that can do as much good for female weakness as can Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and you may use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. LESTER E. WARNER, R. 1, Box 69, Onalaska, Wis.

OFFER ACCEPTED BY MINERS

LONDON, Oct. 23 (By the Associated Press).—The industrial crisis was temporarily bridged late this afternoon when the striking coal miners accepted an invitation to meet the government for renewed discussion of the miners' demands and the railroad men, at the request of the miners, postponed their sympathetic strike movement under which the railway employees would have ceased work at midnight Sunday.

This sensational close of a day of the most intense anxiety came as the result of informal discussions during the morning, participated in by representatives of the government, the coal mine owners and the miners' leaders, and subsequent joint meeting of the national union of railwaymen and miners' executive bodies.

It is generally understood that the government has drafted new proposals for adjustment of the miners' demands which are more acceptable to the mine workers. In any event, the miners decided to accept the invitation to reopen discussions.

The decision was placed before the national union of railwaymen with the request that the railroad employees postpone their strike so as not to prejudice the negotiations. The railroad men acceded to the request and postponed their strike indefinitely, pending the discussion with the government.

The miners' representatives will meet the government tomorrow morning.

It is generally assumed that the transport workers, who have been marking time, will not take any strike action so long as there is hope for peace being made between the miners and the government.

MILL STORIES FOR MILL WORKERS

James Canty, yard worker, is one of the oldest employees of the Massachusetts mills.

"Jimmy," as everybody calls him, was born 66 years ago on Hamilton street in the old Fort Hill district of Boston. That was in the days before a good part of the section had been carved over to fill in the Back Bay and Fort Hill was really the name of a hill.

"Jimmy" didn't hang around his birthplace for long, though. While he was still of tender age, his home was transferred to a farm in Gill in the western part of the state. Here, as a lad, he milked the cows, bedded the horses, fed the pigs, chopped wood, and did the ordinary other dooryard chores that commonly fall to the lot of the growing boy on the farm.

Of course "Jimmy" waxed strong and sturdy as a result of his healthful labors as a young agriculturist. When he was 17 years old, however, he decided to emigrate to Lowell.

He packed his small belongings, therefore, and came to the home of his brother-in-law, Timothy Hurley, in this city. Later he worked on a farm in Tewksbury.

Hailed by the Boss

One day Mr. Canty was walking along Bridge street, he was hailed by a stranger, who proved to be Aaron Brown, who served as boss of the gang of the Massachusetts for quarter of a century.

"Say, young man," observed Mr. Brown, "I'll bet you come from the country."

The young man modestly admitted that he did.

"I knew it from your strong, healthy appearance," said Mr. Brown, "I want you to come to work for me in the yard of the Massachusetts."

"Jimmy" took the job. That was 46 years ago.

During the first two years of the young man's employment by the mills he worked about the yard. His boss showed a strong friendship for the young man who came to be generally known as "Brown's boy."

At the end of two years a vacancy developed in the waste house of which his brother-in-law, Timothy Hurley, was boss for 25 years. Mr. Hurley was employed by the Massachusetts altogether in different positions for half a century.

"Jimmy" stuck to the waste department and was finally placed in charge of the room. Something over a year he took a vacation to rest his Rheumatism interfered somewhat with a while he went back to the mills and took up the same job in the yard as he had done upon 46 years ago.

A Walking History

Mr. Canty is a walking history of happenings about the Massachusetts nearly all of which he saw and part of which he has figured in during the long term of his service for the corporation.

When he started work for the mills, four days and four night watchmen were employed, and they had their headquarters over the counting-room. They changed hours from watching from night to day every two weeks.

"Jimmy's" first pay amounted to 25 for a week's work.

When he first went to work for the mills there was no yard where the clothes room is now located. There were bare lucious pears and apples and there were one or two trees of the not so desirable crab apples. Great horse chestnuts blossomed in the yard in spring and east their agreeable shade through the summer.

Skating on the Merrimack was the most popular pastime with the mill workers in the days when Jim Canty was a young man. When the looms ceased throbbing, as, while at noon and at night, the toilers used to clapping down the river's bank and, cheek-reddening spin up or down stream.

The skating was not confined to the toilers in the mills by any means. To skate on the smooth surface of the Merrimack was a widely esteemed pleasure, and people came from quite a distance to enjoy it.

There was much fishing through the ice, too, in those days, and across the river in Centralville was an establishment, known as a "palm garden," where there was exhilaration for the kind not provided for in these days of Volstead aridity.

Day of Heavy Freshets

Mr. Canty of course remembers days when heavy freshets came tearing down the valley threatening to cause great damage. He remembers, too, the time when Centralville bridge was burned on August 5, 1932. It happened at the night time, and in the morning all of the mill workers who lived on the opposite side were faced with the problem of getting to their jobs. Workmen laid planks across what remained of the burned structure that had fallen into the river, and some of the more venturesome persons walked across on these. Then a number of the mill workers who had boats brought them to the shore and they were used to ferry the workers across the river. For several days, according to Mr. Canty, the boat owners acted as ferrymen without charge for their services. Then someone started charging ten cents for a passage, and all the rest began to feel like kicking themselves because they had not discovered the miniature gold-mine that they possessed earlier.

The ferry-boats coined money until a new bridge was built. They used to land where the electric light plant of the mill is now located.

Canty remembers, too, some of the troubles during the long years that have passed since he first entered the employ of the Massachusetts mills. He recalls labor disturbances that were serious, and in which fights were frequent between yardmen who were called to elect strikers from the mill premises, and husky opponents.

He remembers, too, the days when there was not a steam engine in the Massachusetts mills, and there were only two slakers and but three drawing-in girls were employed.

GOV. COX EXPECTS TO BE ELECTED

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Governor Cox of Ohio today told several hundred members of the Young Americans Democratic League that, if elected, he would devote his energy to accomplishing an industrial readjustment throughout the country.

Industrial Engineer in Cabinet

One of the first steps in this direction, he said, would be the appointment of "the highest class industrial engineer available in the country as a member of my cabinet."

Governor Cox said he was "absolutely free and unfettered by campaign promises—even in the matter of appointing a fourth class postmaster."

Expected to Be Elected

"Although I feel myself an utterly free man," he added, "I shall recognize my election as a positive mandate for the League of Nations. I confidently expect to be elected, but I will not consider my election as a personal party victory, but as a triumph of the great principle which the democratic party represents."

Confusion If Harding Wins

"If Senator Harding is elected, there will be on the other hand, a multitude of confusions in Washington. The certainty of this is evidenced by the statements of other prominent republicans. In the newspapers nearly every day, Senator Johnson declares that the republican candidate is firmly set against the league, while in the same newspapers former President Taft declares with equal positiveness that Harding is for it."

GROWS HOTTER

The coming of Governor Cox to Massachusetts has resulted in the injection of vim and vigor into the democratic state campaign. There can be no question but that Mr. Cox made a favorable impression upon the voters by his straight-forward expressions of opinion. To the friends of the cause of self-government for Ireland he gave the assurance that the present "war of extermination" must not be permitted to continue, and that if elected president, he would take steps to bring the question before the League of Nations tribunal. As was pointed out by John Jackson Walsh, in a speech at Worcester this week, on any question before the league council regarding Ireland, England would be prohibited from voting as she would be an interested party.

The democratic leaders of the state have taken hold of the work of pushing the fight through to a victorious close during the last week of the campaign. Edward W. Quinn of Cambridge, national committee man, Daniel J. Coakley and Martin Lonnasey, in Boston, are working with State Chairman Michael J. O'Leary to get the
